Going Through Ohio. David S. Ingalls' Story. Our Lovely D. A. R. Financial Fairy Tale.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

THIS IS written on the Pennsylvania "Broadway Limited," going through Ohio, past Crestline, Mansfield, Wooster and on through Salem to Pittsburgh, where they say it is a bad sign when you can see the sun at noon, or the moon at night.

Many years ago, at Wooster, this writer thought he would become a great railroad man. But his handwriting left much to be desired, and he was invited to start handling things in a freight office. A cousin, Walter Mullins, had tried newspaper work on the Philadelphia Press, and liked it, so this individual went into Charles A. Dana's New York Sun office, and is glad of it, and grateful to Wooster, having done in newspaper offices better than he could have done in freight offices.

YOU OBSERVE big barns in Ohio, standing beside small farm houses, with elaborate lightning rods on the barns, none on some of the adjoining houses.

In the fields there is comfort for Wall street brokers whose exchange seats have fallen low. Sheep, well shorn, are accompanied by little white spots, each a new-born lamb.

As the lambs come back to Ohio grass each spring, so the two-legged lambs will return to the stock ticker, in due time.

OHIO IS to be congratulated on having a man worth while to vote for in the May primaries.

David S. Ingalls, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, in charge of aeronautics, is candidate for Governor on the Republican ticket, and this is part of his story:

His father told him about Darius Green, who tried to fly, and fell. Young David, not yet ten years old, believed his father's statement that men would fly some day and decided to try it.

He made wings, jumped from a tall apple tree to fly, as he had seen young robins do, and injured his spine. When the big war came, that injury made it impossible for him to take the ordinary soldier's job, marching up and down, riding on a horse or looking after a cannon.

BUT THE INJURED spine did not keep young Mr. Ingalls from sitting down and operating the controls and machine gun of an airplane. He went into the American service, flew well, and fought hard. The only American naval ace in the World War, official reports show that he brought down five enemy planes and was awarded the distinguished service medal.

Mr. Ingalis is a rich young man, but that did not cause him to look for "a soft job" in the war. He picked out the hardest, most dangerous.

HE IS PICKING out a hard, dangerous job now in politics, and this writer wishes he could vote for him. Any American that tries to fly before he is 10 years old, and then flies for his country well, and fights well, is the right kind of American. There are many such in Ohio, and doubtless they will vote for him.

DAUGHTERS OF the American Revolution often surprise you. Recently they said it was a great shame for American children to be "rubbing elbows with the children of immigrants." Those esteemed "Daughters" must be descendants of immigrants, or red Indians.

Now the Daughters ask that all foreign-born out of a job be deported, "through a presidential decree of emergency."

THE DAUGHTERS' ancestors, when they first arrived, were out of a job and it might have been helpful if some of them had been deported.

But honest aliens, men and women, now in this country under guarantee of decent treatment, will not be deported unless this has become a dishonest government.

FOR A FASCINATING financial fairy-tale, read the history of Ivan Kreuger, Swedish genius of financial legerdemain. Kreuger had "actually received nearly one thousand million dollars."

Also:

"One can sum up the activities of Kreuger in recent years by saying that he transferred from the United States to Europe $500,000,000."

HE LENT $600,000,000 to various European countries, "he always carried one million crowns in his pocket," and, very interesting touch:

"He had no vices except the company of pretty women and champagne with every meal."

The comparatively small loss of Swedish investors, some sixty millions, will be felt keenly. Americans are so used to being swindled by their own "high finance," through foreign bonds, watered stocks and otherwise, that a few hundred millions more or less will hardly be noticed.

MR. STIMSON, Secretary of State, is in Geneva, the Lord knows why, talking to other nations about what they should do about the size of their armies, etc. What business is that of ours?

The Negro in the woodpile appears when the French say they cannot accept Mr. Stimson's suggestions, because he makes no provision, if you please, FOR THE UNITED STATES TO JOIN WITH FRANCE IN CASE FRANCE EVER GETS INTO A WAR.

WOULD YOU want a better joke than that? President Hoover might tell France and the rest of the world that we

Court Acts to Ban 'Ambulance Chasing' Lawyers

DISBARMENT TO BE ASKED IN SUITS BY BAR GROUP

Dozen Attorneys Involved In Secret Report Given Approval by County Bench

Disbarment proceedings were ordered today against members of the Allegheny County Bar in the association's investigation to stamp out "ambulance chasing" and improper practices among attorneys.

A Common Pleas Court order, handed down this morning, directed that proceedings be instituted against members accused of unethical practices. The order was based on a partial report of a committee of the Bar Association which has been investigating the practices of certain lawyers for the past several months. The names of the lawyers involved were not revealed.

It is understood that 10 or 12 lawyers were named in the report submitted to the court by the committee, which was appointed by the president of the Allegheny County Bar Association and approved by the president judge.

Rumor that the committee wanted to use George L. Brady, 421 Ridgewood avenue, and Robert W. Miller, of Hill avenue, Carnegie, as witnesses in disbarment proceedings gained currency in the Courthouse, when perjury cases against the two men were recently postponed at the request of the Bar Association.

The pair was listed for trial on allegations that they perjured themselves before the bar committee when questioned regarding "ambulance chasing."

The court order today said:

"At a meeting of the judges of the Court of Common Pleas of Allegheny County, Pa., held April 22, 1932, it was ordered that the partial report of the committee appointed by the president of the Allegheny County Bar Association and approved by the president judge May 5, 1931, be received and the said committee be requested to cause proceedings to be instituted in this court for the disbarment of the members of the bar named in said report, and it is so ordered."

GRETA GARBO

La Garbo, cold-hearted film actress, whose manager today at Hollywood denied emphatically that she's going to marry wealthy Wilhelm Soerensen, Swedish society man, in London soon.

MAN RESCUED UNDER TRUCK

West End police and firemen worked for more than 30 minutes early today to extricate a driver's helper imprisoned in the cab of his trailer-truck when it overturned rounding a corner at Mansfield avenue and South Main street. The driver of the truck jumped.

A short time after the helper, Clarence Swisher, 21, of Zanesville, O., was free, a lighted match ignited gasoline and oil on the street and fired the truck. The fire was extinguished without damage. Swisher was removed to South Side Hospital with a fractured leg.

Swisher was pinned in his seat against a pole when the truck, loaded with tons of preserving jars, skidded as it rounded the corner. The truck damaged the home of Mrs. Minnie Buckley when it crashed into it as it turned over on its side. The truck was owned by the Transportation Engineering Company, of Zanesville.

BANDITS, POLICE IN GUN DUEL

A pistol battle in which nearly a score of shots were fired was staged between East Pittsburgh police and a group of alleged auto thieves following the holdup and robbery of a Carnegie Tech student and a girl companion in the Mill road, near Turtle Creek, early today.

The chase began when Motorcycle Officers John Halluska and George Stanko encountered three men in Bradock avenue, East Pittsburgh, riding in a machine reported to have been used in the holdup and robbery of John Theobald, of Baltimore, Md., Carnegie Tech student, and a girl companion a short time before. The men sped away when ordered to stop, police said.

As they sped along Mill road, Stanko fired a shot into the rear tire of the machine. The occupants of the machine returned the officer's fire.

Nearly a score of shots was exchanged.

The trio was lost near Braddock when Halluska stopped after Stanko fell from the zigzagging motorcycle. Halluska thought the officer had been wounded.

GARBO WEDDING STORY BRINGS DENIALS

Star Not Engaged to Rich Swede, Studio Heads Say; Expect Her Retirement

HOLLYWOOD, April 23.—(AP.)—Greta Garbo's manager—and that's about as near as anyone ever gets to the eccentric Swedish movie queen—denied emphatically today that she is to be married soon in Europe, as reported from London.

Officials at her studio also pooh-poohed the idea that she will wed Wilhelm Soerensen, wealthy Stockholm society man. From what they said, however, it was regarded as virtually certain that when her contract expires in June she will leave for Europe without signing a new one.

Studio executives were represented as becoming more and more convinced that she plans to retire from the screen permanently and spend the rest of her life in her native land, which, because of her vast earnings, she could do in style without another stroke of work.

It was said that there is a special reason why Garbo will not marry Soerensen. He, it was explained, was a visitor here 18 months ago and was her escort on numerous occasions.

Shortly after he left, the actress' "life story" by a woman writer was published and Garbo, a studio official said, held Soerensen responsible for supplying the material.

EARLY RETURN OF LINDY BABY RUMORED

Norfolk Men Reported Ready To Announce Success or Quit; Capone Denies Offer

International News Service.

NORFOLK, Va., April 23.—Excitement ran high here today in the wake of an unverified report that Norfolk negotiators would announce recovery of the kidnaped Lindbergh baby or drop their attempt to effect return of the stolen infant by nightfall.

John Hughes Curtis, chief of the trio of negotiators here, was absent and reported aboard the Marcon, a yacht owned by Col. C. H. Consolvo, millionaire hotel magnate. The Marcon left Norfolk last night about 7 p. m. on an unannounced mission.

The Very Rev. H. Dobson-Peacock, rector of Christ's Episcopal Church and one of the negotiators, refused to discuss the negotiations, as did the third of the trio, Rear Admiral Guy H. Burrage, retired. Dean Dobson-Peacock has just returned from a trip, which he made under an assumed name.

BRITISH SLEUTH IN U. S.

OTTAWA, April 22.—(AP.)—A member of Scotland Yard, London's famous police agency, is reported to be in the United States aiding in hte search for the kidnaped son of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Friends of Inspector T. Gallacher, of Scotland Yard, have received word that he has been in the United States for two weeks. He is said to be there at the invitation of United States police officials to assist in the search for the Lindbergh baby.

CAPONE DENIES OFFER

CHICAGO, April 23.—(INS.)—Published reports from Hopewell, N. J., that Al Capone has renewed his offer to find the kidnaped Lindbergh baby, if he is temporarily released from jail, were firmly denied as a "deliberate lie" today by the convicted gang king.

The gang chieftain is in jail awaiting outcome of his appeal to the United States Supreme Court, filed yesterday from his conviction and 11-year prison term on charges of evading the income tax. He declared:

"I did not make any statement like that. The last statement I made in regard to the Lindbergh baby was through Arthur Brisbane."

Still Shirking Our Duty in Hawaii

BECAUSE REAR ADMIRAL Yates Stirling, Jr., U. S. N., told the government at Washington the whole truth about the horrible condition of affairs in Honolulu, a member of the Hawaiian Legislature moves to have him relieved as commandant of the Thirteenth Naval District and recalled to continental United States.

While the Hawaiian Legislature is considering this impudent proposal, it would be well for the American people to consider the results of the failure of the government at Washington to deal promptly and firmly with the conditions in Hawaii revealed by Admiral Stirling more than three months ago.

The Hoover administration, which appears to have neither head, heart nor manhood, shirked its duty in the premises by failing to remove the governor of Hawaii for incompetence.

The Congress feebly followed in the Hoover path and shirked its duty by not bringing impeachment proceedings against all the federal officials in Hawaii responsible for the breakdown of government there.

BOTH the administration and Congress delayed any remedial action until a characteristic Hoover special investigator of the Department of Justice could go from Washington to Honolulu, make an inquiry, and file a report.

And that is probably the last the public will hear of the matter unless public sentiment compels the Congress to conduct its own investigation by means of impeachment proceedings.

Meantime the movement in the Hawaiian Legislature to call upon President Hoover to relieve Admiral Stirling indicates that the politicians of the islands do not expect any further action by the federal government.

Surely some Senator or Representative in Congress will go to the defense of Admiral Stirling and force a debate on the deplorable situation in Hawaii that will bring about two results:

First, the removal from office of Gov. Judd, and every other incompetent official.

Second, the placing of the Hawaiian Islands under the supervision and protection of either the War Department or the Navy Department as Floyd Gibbons, who has just returned to this country from Honolulu, wisely recommends.

THE United States acquired Hawaii as a national defense measure. But Hawaii will be a source of weakness instead of strength to the national defense unless its government provides protection to America and Americans.

Bitter experience has proved that the territorial form of government in Hawaii is a failure.

Congress should take to heart the lesson of that experience and place the Hawaiian Islands either under the supervision of the Bureau of Insular Affairs of the War Department or a similar bureau in the Navy Department.

Find Body of Woman Plane Crash Victim

MARTINS FERRY, O., April 23.—The body of Dr. Carol S. Cole, 46, St. Louis woman physician, missing since a mail plane crashed in a sleet storm on March 21, killing Pilot Hal George, was found in the Ohio River near Steubenville today.

Pittsburgh Crooner Begins Jail Term for Bigamy

"The Prisoner's Song" was written just a year or so too soon for Charles H. Nye, formerly vocalist with the Stanly Theater orchestra under Phil Spitalny and Dave Broudy, and later heard over a national radio hookup when Spitalny played on the Pennsylvania Roof in New York.

For the blond-haired crooner today is starting a nine-month term in the county jail at Santa Ana, Cal., because he had too many wives.

He was found guilty of bigamy yesterday and placed on probation for five years, with the provision that he first serve the nine-month term.

Nye's mellow voice was the cause of his downfall.

His third wife, Frances Reid, heard his songs coming over the radio from a San Antonio (Tex.) station as she sat in her home at Hawthorne, Cal. She had learned Nye had married Louise Russo in San Diego a short time after he left her. There had been no divorce, so Mrs. Nye the third had her husband arrested.

The other marriages by Nye—to Hazel Brock, in Indiana, in 1919, and to Mary M. Hurley, in Louisville, Ky., in 1924—ended in divorce.

2 ALIENISTS TO TESTIFY FOR STATE

Experts Will Attempt to Undermine Defense in 'Honor Slaying' Case

By JAMES ADAM

International News Service.

HONOLULU, T. H., April 23.—With two government alienists prepared to testify today that Lieut. Thomas H. Massie was sane when the shot was fired that killed Joseph Kahahawai, Hawaiian territorial authorities brought pressure to bear upon Prosecutor John C. Kelley to present his rebuttal testimony slowly and cautiously in an effort to nullify the defense erected by Clarence Darrow.

Although both Dr. Joseph Catton and Dr. Paul Bowers, the prosecution's psychiatrists, were denied permission by Darrow to examine Lieut. Massie, they reported to Kelley that from a study of the records they were convinced that the naval officer's conduct was that of a normal person.

Lieut. Massie, his mother-in-law, Mrs. Grace Hubbard Fortescue, and two naval enlisted men are charged with the second degree murder of Kahahawai.

DEFENSE ARGUMENT

The defense contended that Kahahawai admitted leading five hoodlums in an attack on Mrs. Massie, and this confession so unbalanced the young lieutenant that he unconsciously pulled the trigger of a pistol he had pointed at the native's heart.

Resuming the trial after a two-day recess, Kelley had been anxious to conclude his case today, but Gov. Lawrence Judd and Hawaiian Attorney General Harry Hewitt both insisted on moving deliberately.

The two officials told Kelley, it was learned, that he must con-

DAYLIGHT TIME TO START HERE

Clocks in Pittsburgh and in most Western Pennsylvania municipalities will be moved ahead one hour at 2 a. m. tomorrow to Daylight Saving Time.

Dr. Jacob S. Payton, president of the Pittsburgh Council of the Churches of Christ, said:

"Services in Pittsburgh Protestant churches will be held according to daylight saving time, beginning tomorrow. If all persons will remember to turn their clocks ahead one hour tonight before retiring, it will aid, not only the ministers, but also the worshippers on a day in which change of time always causes much confusion."

The new time will affect railroad schedules. The Pennsylvania, Pittsburgh and Lake Erie and Baltimore and Ohio railroads have announced local trains will be scheduled to correspond with the time change.

Some through trains will be affected also, it was announced.

The Western Union Company has asked patrons of their time service to move the minute hand around the dial once to the right.

INDEPENDENTS HURL BARBS AT DAVIS, VARE IN HUGE RALLY

BUTLER SCORES INTERNATIONAL BANKERS

Pledges Bonus Aid, Opposes Debt Cancellation; Flinn, Stadtfeld Also Assail Foe

By MARK SHIELDS

International bankers, the Vare machine of Philadelphia, Senator James J. Davis and the Regular Republican organization of Pittsburgh were denounced in unmeasured terms by Gen. Smedley Butler, Ralph Flinn and Judge Joseph Stadtfeld, Independent candidates for U. S. Senator, Auditor General and the Superior Court, respectively, at a monster mass meeting in Duquesne Garden last night.

Joining the candidates in urging defeat for the organization ticket and asking votes for the entire Independent slate of [illegible] legislative candidates were Gov. Pinchot, County Commissioner C. M. Barr and Attorney Ralph Smith, Independent county chairman.

There was plenty of spontaneous applause for each salvo against the regulars from the 6,500 in the audience, one of the largest political meetings ever held in Pittsburgh. Shafts directed at Davis were received with shouts of approval, as were attacks on Vare and Senator James J. Coyne.

BUTLER UPHOLDS BONUS

Butler, whom most of the audience had come to hear, denounced international bankers as responsible for war. He also pledged himself to the soldier bonus. He said:

"I tell you right now if you send me down to Washington as one of your Senators I will fight like a wild animal for the soldier bonus right now. The soldiers are entitled to something as well as the international bankers.

"When I was in the Marines these bankers used to set up governments in Central America so the presidents might borrow money from them. Then these presidents would refuse to pay, and the Marines would have to go down and 'protect American citizens.' I'm against that.

"Europe owes us money in public and private debts. The international bankers want us to forget the public debt so they can collect their money, which would mean a greater burden on the American taxpayer. I would never forget these debts. We probably won't collect them, but I would keep talking about them and be annoying.

"I am for a federal bond program, half to be expended by the federal government, and half to be loaned to states, for the purpose of public construction which will mean jobs for our people. We must have a tariff wall around Pennsylvania to protect our industries."

STADTFELD SPEAKS

Judge Stadtfeld denounced the effort of politicians to control the bench, declaring the effort of the Republican State Committee to thrust him aside in favor of former Lieut. Gov. Arthur James was payment of a political debt.

He said:

"When I saw this danger to our bench that it might become a political plaything, I felt it my duty, despite the theory that judges should not campaign, to tell the people of Pennsylvania of this disgraceful condition.

"The political organization in Philadelphia presents a candidate it wishes to reward for political service. Judges should be above obligations to any political boss. When you have political courts, then you have political justice."

PINCHOT SCORES COYNE

Gov. Pinchot discarded a prepared speech attacking utilities and spoke extemporaneously, asking support for the entire Independent ticket. He singled out for praise Mrs. Mary Flinn Lawrence, Independent candidate for delegate to the Republican national convention from the Thirtieth congressional district.

By name he attacked Coyne, with whom he broke a short time ago after a political association of two years. He asked the voters of the Forty-third senatorial district to elect E. J. Woerthle in Coyne's place.

The Mellon and Atterbury interests were linked by the Governor as chief supporters of the regular machine in the state, which he charged was trying to reach out for power. He blamed the Vare organization and State Chairman Edward Martin for frustrating his efforts to secure unemployment relief at the special session of the Legislature last December.

FLINN PLEDGES ECONOMY

Flinn deplored the high cost of government and promised, if elected Auditor General, to conduct the office on business principles. The Indiana Township farmer, who made his first political speech less than a month ago, has developed the tactics of a veteran campaigner in the intervening time and made a hit with the crowd.

Barr, who, next to Butler, was the favorite of the audience, bitterly assailed Davis as evasive on important public questions, denounced his record as Secretary of Labor and pleaded with the audience to elect Woerthle and the entire slate of Independent legislative candidates as a step toward abolishing the Delinquent Tax Fee Office in the county government and instituting other reforms.

HUSTON FAVORS 'MEDICAL' BEER

WASHINGTON, April 23 — (Universal) — A prohibition modification trial balloon has been sent up in Hoover administration circles.

Col. Claudius H. Huston, ex-Republican national chairman, yesterday announced a new plan for solving the prohibition problem without repealing the Eighteenth Amendment or resorting to a liquor referendum.

The gist of Huston's plan is to modify the Volstead Act to permit the manufacture of beer for medical purposes and to give physicians unlimited discretionary power to dispense liquor.

Regulation of drug store permits would be left to the various states. Dry states could adopt strict regulations, while anti-prohibition states could let the bars down.

Huston, who has been an ardent dry, has been in frequent conference with President Hoover.

While Huston spoke on his own authority, it is understood President Hoover was acquainted with the proposal before the Colonel issued his statement.

13 ROUNDED UP IN KIDNAPING

CHICAGO, April 23 — (AP) — Eleven men and two women were arrested last night by State's Attorney's police under Chief Investigator Pat Roche in connection with the recent kidnaping of Howard A. Woolverton, South Bend (Ind.) manufacturer, and 29 bank robberies. The authorities said the 13 were implicated by confessions of other members of the alleged gang already in custody at Racine, Wis., and Hartford City, Ind.

Last night's arrests were made in Chicago Heights, a suburb. Most of the 13 were seized in their homes. A search of some of them yielded a large number of firearms and much ammunition.

Woolverton was kidnaped last January as with Mrs. Woolverton he was driving from a theater to his home in a fashionable section of South Bend. The couple was taken outside the city limits, where Mrs. Woolverton was released and given a note demanding $50,000.

She notified police and while they sought the kidnapers with the aid of the Secret Six and Chicago authorities, ransom was believed to have been paid by intermediaries. Woolverton was released unharmed, presumably in Chicago, returning home by train.

MISSING 'BEAR' TRADERS TO APPEAR

Bragg and Smith Ready to Testify; 'Short-Selling' Quiz Makes No Progress

WASHINGTON, April 23 — (AP) — The Senate Banking Committee was notified today that the stock market traders it had been unable to locate will be here today.

Thomas E. Bragg wired from Columbus, O., he was on his way to Washington to answer the committee's subpena.

Counsel for Bernard E. Smith, described with Bragg as a "bear" by William A. Gray, counsel for the Senate investigation, arrived at the committee offices early today and said his client would reach here later.

MEEHAN IN SOUTH

The committee has been unable to reach M. J. Meehan, a third big operator, but he was said to be motoring in the South, recuperating from an accident.

Gray expressed confidence that Meehan was not dodging the subpena.

The committee also issued a subpena for William (Big Bill) Danforth, Wall street trader.

The market records, taken from the New York Stock Exchange, revealed both Bragg and Smith as heavy short-sellers at the close of business April 8. Bragg was credited with a short position totaling 11,000 shares of stock, including 5,000 shares of American Telephone and Telegraph. Smith held 43,400 shares short, including 13,500 shares in General Motors and a like amount in Westinghouse Electric.

QUIZ GETS NOWHERE

The investigation has gotten nowhere to date. Witnesses have paraded through the stand without giving any information about the bear raids over which the administration felt so much alarm 10 days ago.

Rockefeller knew little about market operations, according to his testimony. He revealed himself though as an optimist. He told the committee he profited $550,000 by short-selling since October, 1929, but he admitted losing "several million dollars" in the same period by the depreciation of stocks and collapse of industries. He expressed a fervent hope that "better times" face the nation.

In private conversations, Rockefeller later commended Congress for enacting the Glass-Steagall and reconstruction finance bills. Both measures materially aided the nation's economic recovery, he said.

Missing Broker Ready To Appear, Lawyer Says

NEW YORK, April 23 — (INS) — Jacob Gould Sherman, Jr., lawyer, today said he telegraphed William Gray, counsel for the Senate committee conducting the stock market investigation, that Bernard E. Smith would appear before the committee today.

At Washington, Gray declared yesterday he was unable to get in touch with Smith or with Thomas E. Bragg, both of whom were sought as witnesses.

Smith is a prominent member of the New York Stock Exchange.

Bragg was known to have been in Florida recently, and his friends in the financial district, where he is known as a big trader, believed he was in Washington today.

Patton Township Woman Ends Life

Mrs. Jenny Rotelli, 40, of Adderly, Patton Township, killed herself late yesterday, according to a Coroner's office report, by firing a bullet into her chest in the bedroom of her home while her daughters, Agnes, 17, visited neighbors. The daughter, hearing the shot, ran into the house and found her mother lying on the floor. Mrs. Rotelli was said to have been in ill health.

4 HURT AS AUTO HITS TREE

Two Beechview men and two Ingram girls were injured in Mt. Lebanon early today when the automobile in which they were riding struck a tree after failing to make a curve, police reported.

Thomas Doyle, Jr., 27, of 1907 Belasco avenue, the driver, is in Mercy Hospital suffering from a fractured right leg. He is charged with driving without an operator's license and reckless driving. Walter Dunn, 21, 1658 Fallowfield avenue, is in the same hospital with a broken ankle and body bruises. Miss Anna May Newham, 19, 512 Prospect avenue, Ingram, and Mary Pendergras, 21, of 518 Prospect avenue, Ingram, are at their homes suffering body bruises and lacerations.

Dr. Paul J. Dunn, brother of one of the injured men, treated the victims when called to the scene of the accident. The accident occurred in Bower Hill road near Cochran road. The car was wrecked.

Smith Sends Appeal For Penna. Votes

PHILADELPHIA, April 23. — (AP) — Alfred E. Smith makes a direct appeal for preferential votes in the Pennsylvania primary of next Tuesday in a letter received by Thomas A. Logue, chairman of the Democratic City Committee. Smith wrote:

"I hope voters in the Pennsylvania primary will express their preference and I will, of course, be gratified if I again receive the expression of their confidence which they so fully accorded me in 1928."

VOLPE GUILTY IN ATTACK

Joseph Volpe, younger member of a politically powerful Wilmerding family, was found guilty yesterday of assault and battery on a police officer, and is awaiting sentence, to be pronounced Wednesday by Visiting Judge O. C. Kent, of Crawford County.

Night Police Capt. Thomas F. Conlin, of Wilmerding, brought the action against Volpe and five companions, whom he arrested when, he declared, they jeered at him from an automobile February 29. He testified they attacked him at the door of the borough lockup.

Convicted with Volpe were Joseph Norkus, of 103 Patton street, and Michael Masters, of 222 Bridge street. The other three, acquitted on directed verdicts by the court, were Anthony Bronzo, of 215 Bridge street; John DePhillips, of 129 Middle avenue, and Elmer Younghouse, of 120 State street, Wilmerding.

Counter-charges brought by the youths against the police captain resulted in a verdict of not guilty.

Capt. Conlin testified Masters made a flying tackle and seized him about the knees at the door of the lockup. He said the others pummeled him with their fists, and declared he used his mace on them in self-defense. Masters' jaw was broken by the mace, and he spent three weeks in a hospital.

ALIENISTS WILL SEEK TO PROVE MASSIE SANE

Prosecution Experts Hope To Shake Defense Claim In 'Honor Slaying' Trial

centrate more forcefully on trying to nullify the effect on the polyglot jury of the testimony given by the defense alienists, Drs. Edward Huntington Williams and Thomas J. Orbison. These two asserted that in their opinion Massie was legally insane when the shot was fired.

In addition, Gov. Judd and Hewitt insisted that a determined effort be made to counteract the dramatic testimony of both Lieut. Massie and his wife, Mrs. Thelia Massie, with its implied theme of the unwritten law.

MASSIE DECLARED SANE

The government's alienists informed Kelley that a study of the trial testimony indicated that Lieut. Massie's conduct at the home of Mrs. Fortescue, where Kahahawai was shot, was that of a normal person and that he was not insane legally or medically.

Dr. Robert B. Faus, county physician, was also ready to take the stand for Kelley to assert from his observations that Lieut. Massie was not deranged at any time.

Darrow will rely for sur-rebuttal, if he deems it necessary, on Dr. Orbison. Dr. Williams sailed for the mainland yesterday.

Kelley and his associate, Barry Ulrich, after a long conference with the Drs. Catton and Bowers, now believe that they will not be able to finish their case before Monday noon.

All of Tuesday will be required for argument as to the instructions to be given the jury, Kelley said. He added:

"I think the case will go to the jury on Wednesday, after all-day arguments."

Darrow retorted:

"The sooner it goes to the jury, the better I like it."

BITTER FIGHT SEEN

The fight over the instructions to the jury is bound to be bitter.

The defense wants the jury to be advised that if it finds Lieut. Massie not guilty by reason of insanity, then the co-defendants must be acquitted as no crime was committed.

The prosecution was anxious to oppose this, but Kelley admitted that it had been unable to find any case with a similar issue in all the United States which he could cite as authority.

Kelley will seek a clear-cut conviction. Shrewdly, however, he will request the jury to be instructed that if it decides Lieut. Massie was not normal at the time of carrying out the conspiracy involving the felonies of kidnaping and assault with a deadly weapon, this may be considered in mitigation in fixing the degree of the guilt, but not by way of justification.

This would permit a manslaughter verdict, carrying a penalty of not less than 10 years at hard labor.

LIFE TERM POSSIBLE

The four defendants were indicted for second degree murder, the penalty for which is a compulsory life term.

Under Hawaiian law, Judge Charles S. Davis will not be permitted to comment on the evidence, a restriction that was severely criticized after the trial of Kahahawai and the four other half-castes accused of attacking Mrs. Massie.

This case ended with a hung jury. The retrial will probably be dropped if the "honor slaying" defendants are acquitted, it was learned from the prosecutor's office. Mrs. Massie, who bared her story of horror and shame at both the attack trial and the present trial, is unwilling to submit to further court ordeal.

However, if the present case ends with a hung jury, the attack case against the remaining four half-castes will be retried next, a spokesman for Kelley indicated.

COURT DRAMA DISCUSSED

Although the incident itself was buried deep in the court records, discussion continued in Honolulu private circles over Mrs. Massie's action on the witness stand in tearing up a document handed her by Kelley. She was roundly applauded by the courtroom spectators at the time.

Mrs. Massie insisted that the communication was a confidential matter between doctor and patient and could not be brought into court. Kelley, however, said it was privileged evidence and in this he was upheld by the Hawaiian Medical Association which said that the question of ethical conduct was not involved in the psychopathic test which the document allegedly covered.

The document was not introduced in evidence, however, and its contents remained unprivileged from a legal standpoint.

Costs in Discharged Auto Cases Held Up

A new system of handling costs in cases discharged by Justices of the Peace and Burgesses will be tried out by the County Commissioners. The board yesterday delayed payment to Robert A. Morrow, Burgess of West Homestead, who presented claims in 71 cases of automobile law violations at $2.25 each.

The defendants were discharged for lack of evidence. County Solicitor J. P. Fife, in a letter to the Commissioners, said the county should not pay the costs because the Burgess had no right to discharge defendants admitting their guilt. County Controller Woodside will be asked to help check up on discharge of cases by the minor judiciary.

FLIER'S HANDWRITING SCANNED IN SUICIDE NOTE DISPUTE

PILOT'S MOTHER PUSHES DEATH INQUIRY

Letter Expected to Clear Mystery of Shooting of Mrs. Keith Miller's Fiance

International News Service.

MIAMI, Fla., April 23.—A letter written by Haden Clarke was awaited by officials today in the hope that it might clear up the mystery of the 31-year-old aviator-author's death by shooting in the house of Mrs. J. M. Keith Miller, noted Australian aviatrix.

Mrs. Keith Miller and her flying associate, Capt. William N. Lancaster, former British Army aviator, were still in county jail, pending outcome of the investigation.

State's attorney Vernon Hawthorne definitely said the famous woman flier is not under suspicion, but is merely being detained until the inquiry is finished.

The expected letter which may supply the answer to the question of whether or not Clarke committed suicide was on its way from New York. It was written by the flier and written to his brother, Beverly Clarke, research chemist, just one day before Haden Clarke was mortally shot on the sun porch of Mrs. Keith Miller's residence.

When the letter arrives its handwriting will be compared to the handwriting of two notes left by Clarke and indicating he planned suicide.

Authenticity of the notes was questioned by the aviator-author's mother, Mrs. Ida Clarke, who asked her other son, Beverly, to send the letter for comparison.

Declaring she had a premonition of tragedy a few hours before her son's death, Mrs. Clarke announced she will not be satisfied until a thorough investigation of the mystery has been completed. At first she was inclined to accept the suicide theory, but later said certain circumstances of her son's death indicated he might not have shot himself.

Mrs. Keith-Miller who, according to police, was planning to be married to Clarke, upheld Capt. Lancaster's opinion that the death was suicide. The British aviator said he and Clarke had retired for the night on the sun porch when he was suddenly awakened by the discharge of a pistol and found Clarke dying.

MAH PRISONER OF OWN AIDES

TOKIO, April 23.—(AP.)—The censorship on news of the movements of Gen. Mah Chan-Shan was lifted today and local newspapers published dispatches from their Manchurian correspondents saying the general was held prisoner by his own lieutenants in Northern Manchuria.

Chinese reports recently quoted Gen. Mah as saying he joined in the regime of the new federated state of Manchuria only as a spy and that he was now disassociated from it and loyal to the Chinese central government at Nanking.

The Manchurian version of Gen. Mah's recent adventures, as published here, is this:

He left Tsitsihar on April 3 on the way to Taheiho, where he found his former subordinates enraged because he failed to divide up the 1,000,000 Mexican dollars (about $250,000) which he received from popular subscriptions in China proper last fall when he was defending Manchuria against the Japanese army at the Nonni River.

Wilmerding Vote Hearing Near End

Hearing of an action to strike off the names of 90 persons alleged to be illegally assessed in the Fourth District of Wilmerding was expected to be concluded today before Judge Frank P. Patterson in Common Pleas Court.

The hearing started late yesterday on petition of Samuel L. Smith, of the district, filed by Assistant County Solicitor Ralph H. Frank. Two investigators testified they were unable to find persons at the addresses where assessed. Joseph Capo, cited in a rule issued, failed to appear to contest the action.

Court Fails to Stop Lina's Howling Dogs

LOS ANGELES, April 23.—(AP.)—A city prosecutor ruled yesterday that Lina Basquette's two dogs have a howl coming, because six of their canine kin died from poison and they narrowly escaped death from a similar cause.

Two neighbors of the film actress and dancer told C. P. Johnson, City Prosecutor, the two dogs whined and howled so much sleep was impossible in the neighborhood.

The Guv'nor!

ALICE LEE GROSJEAN

GIRL OFFICIATES AS GOVERNOR

BATON ROUGE, La., April 23.—(INS.)—A charming 25-year-old girl, Miss Alice Lee Grosjean, ruled the destinies of the sovereign state of Louisiana today.

The youngest woman ever to hold such a high office in American history, pretty Miss Grosjean became the state's acting Governor and graced the huge mahogany desk in the Capitol Building with a solemnity belying her youth.

She ascended to the Governor's chair when Gov. Alvin O. King departed for Richmond to attend the conference of states' executives. As Secretary of State Miss Grosjean is next in succession to the Governor.

The state constitution provides that the Lieutenant Governor take the executive reins in the absence of the Governor, and the Senate President is next in line. As an outgrowth of the political feud between former Gov. Huey P. Long and former Lieut. Gov. Paul N. Cyr, Louisiana has no Lieutenant Governor nor Senate President.

Man Clubbed, Woman Held, Friend Sought

Clubbed during an argument, police say George McLaughlin, 54, of 238 Thirty-eighth street, was in Passavant Hospital today suffering from a possible fracture of the skull, while Avaline Thompson, 36, of 33 Hooper street, was held in Center Avenue Police Station on a suspicious person charge. McLaughlin's assailant is being sought.

Police say McLaughlin met the Thompson woman downtown and escorted her to her home. While there another man entered and an argument started. In its midst McLaughlin was felled by a blow from a club, police say.

WALES, MELLON PAY TRIBUTE TO SHAKESPEARE

Memorial Theater Opened At Stratford-on-Avon; Masefield Ode Recited

STRATFORD-ON-AVON, England, April 23.—(AP.)—William Shakespeare was honored by the world today as the home town boy who made good when the Prince of Wales opened the new and modernistic Shakespeare Memorial Theater here.

The theme of the occasion was not merely the pride of this quaint Warwickshire market town in its most famous son, but here was more than a touch of that sentiment in its picturesque and winding streets.

Here Shakespeare lived and loved and laughed; here he was born and here he died. And here he lies buried under a simple stone in Holy Trinity Church. Tradition has it, too, that this was both his birth and death day.

Great and near great made pious pilgrimages here today, but all seemed dim against the luster of the butcher's son, who wrote pieces for the theater 300 years ago.

The Prince of Wales made a speech and unfurled the King's flag. An ode, composed for the occasion by John Masfield, poet laureate, was recited.

At a luncheon, Sir Archibald Flower presided. Sir Frank Benson, founder of a great school of Shakespearan acting, proposed the toast, "The Immortal Memory." Stanley Baldwin responded for England, A. de Fleuriau, the French ambassador, for France and Ambassador Andrew Mellon for America.

The Prince of Wales speaking at the dedication of the Shakespeare Memorial Theater was heard here this morning in an international broadcast of the National Broadcasting Company through Station WCAE. The international pickup was classified as one of the best, being without static.

CENSORS TO SEE 'KIKI' ROBERTS

Tomorrow's midnight show in the Academy Theater, which features Marion (Kiki) Roberts, former Ziegfeld Follies beauty and sweetheart of the late Jack "Legs" Diamond, New York gangster, will not be stopped by police, Public Safety Director James M. Clark declared today.

George Jaffe, manager of the theater, was called into Clark's office yesterday to describe Kiki's role. He said she did a 22-minute act of acrobatic and toe dancing and two songs.

Clark announced that his two censors, City Detectives John Crouse and William O'Bryan, will see the show and report to him.

Jaffe declared he was ready to institute court action if Clark attempted to stop the show.

Blast Razes Store, Investigation Opens

Ambridge officials today were investigating an explosion and fire which destroyed a two-story brick store and apartment building at Sixteenth street and Lenz avenue, Ambridge, last night.

The blast, the third in the borough within as many months, is believed to have been caused by gas. The wrecked building was occupied by the families of Charles Pargamian and Thomas Sedlacek. Both were absent. Damage was estimated at $8,000 by Fire Chief Charles Tienjen, of Ambridge.

HIGH GOAL SET IN WEEK-END RELIEF DRIVE

Family Aid Workers Spurred By Plight of Destitute; Women Begin Help Monday

Determined to reach the 4,000 mark over the week-end, the volunteer workers in the Family-Help-Family plan of Senator Frank J. Harris today were busy clearing up every possible contact to prepare their reports for the next workers' meeting in the William Penn Hotel Tuesday noon. So far the workers have turned in subscriptions sufficient to guarantee three months' relief to 3,631 of the 28,000 destitute families in the county.

The four men's divisions, comprising the advance guard, the central brigade and the right and left wings, yesterday turned in sufficient pledges to care for 326 more families. L. G. Griffith presided at the luncheon meeting yesterday, and the principal speaker was F. J. Chesterman, vice president of the Bell Telephone Company and a director of the Allegheny County Emergency Association.

PLEA FOR COURAGE

Chesterman made an impassioned plea for the workers to keep on with their work, no matter how discouraged they became. He said:

"It is terrifying to realize the hunger that is in this town. When children lose their fingernails because of lack of proper food it's time we understood this is a serious condition confronting us. It's not talk, men, but facts. Some time ago we began serving lunches in certain places to school children who were hungry. The lunches cost five cents, yet in two weeks' time we managed to build their weight up by five and six pounds.

"We have been spending money for relief at the rate of $160,000 a week. That's at the rate of $10,000,000 a year. We need money to combat this situation. We need money from the bond issue, the money from the Talbot bill, and the Family-Help-Family money. We shall need it all before we are through."

BENEFIT POLO GAME

Griffith announced that next Saturday night there would be a benefit polo game in the Hunt Armory, East End. The game is being sponsored by George Vang, prominent sportsman, who is one of the team commanders in the campaign.

The women's division, which has been organizing for the last two weeks, will start actual work on Monday. The women will meet in William Penn Hotel for a luncheon and receive instructions for canvassing the entire county. Mrs. F. C. Irish is in charge of the women's division. She is assisted by Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, in charge of the county, and Mrs. Saul Lavine, in charge of the city.

2 Boys Die as Home Burns, Father Held

HAMILTON, O., April 23.—(AP.)—Two boys were burned to death last night in a mysterious fire that destroyed their home. They were Joseph, 18, and Russell Winkler, 16. Fifteen minutes later their father, Walter, was found four blocks from the burning house. Police said he was intoxicated and would only say:

"What I've done tonight doesn't concern anyone but myself."

Winkler, a widower, was held for questioning.

TROLLEY WAGE STEPS AWAITED

Pending further developments, the wage committee of the Street Railway Employes Union has refused to comment on its failure to negotiate a wage agreement with the Pittsburgh Railways Company on the basis of a voluntary reduction of 10 per cent. The existing scale expires May 1.

It was believed likely the wage committee, of which W. H. Gallagher is chairman and P. J. McGrath, secretary, will refer the deadlock to the international organization, which would delegate a representative to negotiate with the railways company.

Meantime, the door is not closed to further negotiations. Representatives of the 2,200 platform men have not indicated their attitude. The company has asked the employes to accept the voluntary reduction, declaring that if it is not accepted a 15 per cent cut will be imposed.

Charles A. Finley, chairman of the Traction Conference Board, will advise City Council Monday of the status of the negotiations.

are going to attend to OUR business, protect OUR country, let them do as they like, and try to make them sorry if they interfere with us.

NEW YORK CITY had a little riot, on Thursday. So-called "Reds" wanted to talk to the Mayor about unemployment. They met a reception committee of policemen, mounted and on foot. Fifteen of the unemployed will be busy for some time, attending their wounds.

We should be forceful in the suppressing of wicked anarchy, but careful about sending mounted police to "trample and beat men and women," as the New York Times heading describes it. Little incidents sometimes grow into big events, as New York authorities may learn from reading an unexpurgated history of the French Revolution.

NEW YORK courts have just sentenced four bandits to long terms in Sing Sing Prison. Three of them were 18 to 19 years old, the fourth 22. One will meet two brothers in Sing Sing.

The new bootleg-crime industry gets its recruits very young.

WOMAN'S BODY FOUND IN SWAMP

MEADVILLE, Pa., April 23.—(AP.)—Identity of a woman found dead and partially buried in mud and underbrush deep in the Pymatuning Swamp baffled authorities today.

Physicians said the woman had apparently been slain six months ago and that her head bore evidences of a beating. She was between 30 and 40 and was partially wrapped in an inexpensive coat and galoshes.

Norman Hartung, of Warren, Pa., a graduate student of the University of Michigan, found the body about 40 feet from a dirt highway and about three miles from the paved highway at Linesville, Pa. He had entered the swamp in search of reptiles.

State police said no one had been reported missing from this area, and they believed the slaying had taken place in Ohio.

Truck With False Bottom Yields Rum

Several squads of prohibition agents, returning from Clearfield and Cambria county raids, seized a false-bottom truck, containing 150 cases of whisky, on the William Penn highway near New Alexandria, last night. The truck was en route to Pittsburgh from the East. Frank Scappo, of Philadelphia, and William Rowan, of Wilmerding, were arrested, agents said.

TRANSIT BODY'S SUBWAY PLAN DUE SOON

Proposal Expected Within Week; Smithfield Street Route Likely to Be Urged

The City Transit Commission will offer its plan for a subway to City Council within a week, according to reports from well-informed sources. President of Council John S. Herron has asked speed in presentation of the commission's proposal.

The plan of Norman F. Brown and Edward Snodgrass, Jr., is being held for further consideration. It involves a subway under Grant street, Liberty avenue, Ferry and Water streets.

URGED SMITHFIELD LOOP

The Commissioner's most recent idea was a subway under Smithfield street, Seventh avenue, Liberty avenue, Ferry street and Third avenue. In a report to Council December 1, 1931, the Commission recommended a Smithfield street tube but did not go into detail.

From all indications the Commission will again recommend the Smithfield street loop and support it with engineering data compiled by Winters Haydock. Council will then have two plans to consider.

The Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce has been granted a hearing on the subway next Friday.

ECONOMIES DESCRIBED

New economies in subway construction were described to Council yesterday by Dr. Rudolph F. Klicka, of 616 Chestnut street, North Side.

Smaller subway tunnels than have been proposed were suggested by Dr. Klicka for use of high-speed cars. He also offered a plan for the beautification of the Duquesne way wharf with a flood wall and modern parking facilities.

Dr. Klicka's subway plan, which he said would reduce cost of construction 30 to 40 per cent, has been referred to the City Transit Commission, and the flood wall and parking plan to Traffic Engineer Lewis W. McIntyre.

HOBO SEIZING WOMAN ROUTED

Mrs. Louise Byers, 43, of 7124 Race street, Homewood, was seized and choked by a shabbily dressed man early today after she had admitted him to her home to give him a cup of coffee. Fighting off her assailant, she ran screaming into the front of the house and fell in a faint. The intruder fled.

Mrs. Byers told police the man summoned her to the door at 7:30 a. m. Inviting him in, she started to prepare breakfast. As she turned her back the intruder seized her by the throat, saying:

"Lady, I don't want eggs. I want money."

Struggling from his grasp, she eluded the man and screamed for her two children, Gertrude and Charles. The man fled as they reached their mother's side.

Mrs. Byers was the third victim of attacks by unidentified assailants in 12 hours. Earlier Miss Gertrude Harvey, 21, of 1043 Murrayhill avenue, and Margaret Golla, of 737 Hazelwood avenue, were slugged by Negroes. Miss Harvey was struck in the face by a Negro, who confronted her in Fifth avenue, near Beechwood boulevard, and Miss Golla was felled by one in the office of the Homestead telephone exchange.

Man, 60, Kills Girl, 24, Self on Street

EASTON, Pa., April 23.—(AP.)—Goaded by jealousy, police said, a 60-year-old man walked up behind Miss Ercelle Thomas, 24, of Phillipsburg, N. J., on a busy street yesterday, shot her to death and then sent a bullet into his brain. The slayer, William W. Bennett, died in a hospital an hour later without making any statement.

Ascribing the shooting to jealousy, police said Bennett had had Miss Thomas arrested 10 days ago on a charge of stealing $75 from him in a room. The case was later settled out of court.

Pittsburgh Party Sails for Poland

Nearly 100 members of St. Joseph's Union, Western Pennsylvania Polish-American Club, were en route from New York today to Poland for a summer visit. They left Pittsburgh on a special Pennsylvania Railroad train last night.

Leading the party are Thomas Polanski, of Pittsburgh, president of the Union; Mrs. Polanski, Anthony Jaworski, and his daughter, Mrs. C. Harenski. A large number of friends and relatives saw them off at the station last night. The party sailed today on the Gdynia American Line from Brooklyn.

Program Pointers

The life story of Constance Bennett, film star, is dramatized on WJAS at 8:30. The first scene is the Bennett home with radio stars portraying the roles of Richard Bennett, noted actor, and his daughters, Constance, Barbara and Joan. Other episodes depict scenes between Miss Bennett and her director in the making of some of her best-known pictures.

Miss Bennett

To permit the broadcast of the recently inaugurated KQV Midnight Melodies program, featuring Ernest Neff, organist, and William Silk, violinist and tenor, the DX Revel begins at 1:30 a. m. instead of at 1 o'clock.

Children of the Hungarian Reformed Orphans' Home, of Ligonier, Pa., present a program of folk songs and recitations during the Magyar program on KQV at 8:30.

A dramatization of a record-breaking motorcycle ride from Fort Lee Ferry to Trenton, N. J., with snake serum that saved the life of a man bitten by a copperhead, is presented on KDKA during the Danger Fighters program at 8.

A program of old-time tunes as popular today as they were when first introduced several years ago is presented by the Homey and Old Fashioned Quartet on KDKA at 10:15.

The "magic carpet" stays in its hangar tonight. George Olsen and his music are heard in a program from the New York studios with Louis Sobel, Broadway columnist, at the microphone, broadcast through WCAE at 10.

The Gettysburg College Glee Club celebrates the hundredth anniversary of the founding of the institution with a broadcast of semi-popular and college music from WCAE at 5.

Arthur Pryor features two of his own compositions, "The Whistler and His Dog" and "The Triumph of Old Glory," on his last program on those Saturday night tire broadcasts on WCAE at 9.

Fan Fare

LOUISE FRAYNE, talented Pittsburgh songster, heard in a program on KDKA tonight at 6:15, is rapidly attaining a high place among Pittsburgh entertainers . . . She is heard regularly on WJAS every Saturday night . . . Harriet Lee, tall blonde NBC songster, took a stenographic job to crash the studio gates when audition managers repulsed her other attempts . . . Her Big Opportunity came during the memorable Florida hurricane, when her station remained on the air for 72 consecutive hours. Songs during that long standby brought funds for the devastated area and a reputation for herself.

Miss Frayne

"Friendship Town" got its name from the postal guide. When the sponsors started the series they sought a name that would be typical and universal. Search revealed that fully a quarter of the states of the Union have a friendship within their limits.

That song, "Eleven More Months and Ten More Days," written by the Rex Cole Mountaineers is one of the best sheet music sellers in England. "Soft White Hands," the waltz song written by Ray Perkins, is to be published this week.

Art Jarrett says he conducted an orchestra at the age of 3, which would probably be a record under other circumstances . . . He ran away from his folks at Coney Island and was found trying to conduct a group of very amused musicians . . . Cliff Edwards has a uke given him by the Governor of California . . . Eddie Dowling is one of 17 children.

FUNDS NEEDED BY FATHER COX FOR RELIEF

New Opportunity Offered Public to Aid Work; Send in Coupon Today

Just one morning in the vicinity of Old St. Patrick's Church on Seventeenth street will visualize the activity of Father James R. Cox and his work in alleviating the distress of the destitute and hungry army of unemployed that looks to him for daily bread. There are hundreds in the breadline at Old St. Patrick's, hundreds who get their daily baskets of food for the homes, hundreds who come for clothing, hundreds looking for work and hundreds who daily look to this "father of the jobless" for a word of encouragement.

Father Cox

Then there is "Shanty Town," in the shadow of Old St. Patrick's, a grim reminder of a condition that the depression has brought to innumerable men who would be glad to work for a living.

MORE FUNDS NEEDED

Father Cox needs funds to carry on this work and, at the suggestion of one of his admirers, the Sun-Telegraph has launched a campaign in his behalf to be known as the Father Cox-Sun-Telegraph Home Delivery Drive. By a special arrangement the Father Cox unemployment relief fund will get a liberal commission for every new order secured for the home delivery of the Sun-Telegraph.

If you are not now having the Sun-Telegraph delivered to your home, you can fill in the subscription blank on this page and in this way help Father Cox in his welfare work. The subscriber pays no money in advance. The collections will be made by the carrier boy in the regular order of his collections.

Father Cox welcomes the plan. He said last night:

"The amount of relief I can dispense depends entirely upon the funds I have in hand and in sight. I depend entirely upon voluntary subscriptions. They are gladly accepted from every one—irrespective of creed or nationality. The need for funds is tremendously urgent and the Sun-Telegraph campaign comes just at the time to do me the greatest amount of good.

GIVEN OPPORTUNITY

"If there are residents of Pittsburgh or the nearby towns who are not now having an evening newspaper delivered to their home this will give them an opportunity to keep abreast of the times and at the same time help me in my activities among the unemployed."

Father Cox in discussing his work in a general way said:

"In a city the size and character of Pittsburgh there will always be an opportunity for the kind of work I am doing today, and, as I go along, I have plans in mind for permanent activities among the poor and unemployed—depression or no depression. I have hopes of turning the activities of Old St. Patrick's into institutional channels—educational, self-helping and recreational. While much of our work of today is along these lines we hope to broaden the scope of these activities. The opportunity is here and I want to work out a plan of this kind for Old St. Patrick's for all time."

Now, if you want to help Father Cox in his work among the poor, here's your opportunity. Clip the blank on this page, send it in today and the Father Cox unemployment fund will be given the usual commission paid for home delivery orders of this type.

GENO, April 23 — (AP) — Admiral Umberto Cagni, noted explorer and shipping magnate, died suddenly yesterday of a heart attack. In 1900 Admiral Cagni and the Duke of Abruzzi headed an expedition to the North Pole. They came closer to the pole than any man had been up to that time.

FEDERAL FLOUR HERE GOOD

Flour received for distribution in both Allegheny and Westmoreland Counties has been of good quality, representatives of the Allegheny County Emergency Association and the New Kensington Welfare Association said today following reports that unusable flour had been received in Baltimore.

Westmoreland County, the first in Pennsylvania to receive flour from the federal government for distribution among the needy, has distributed 4,000 sacks and has received no complaints, it was said.

In Pittsburgh an expert examined the flour and pronounced it "very good," it was said. In face of the Baltimore report, however, it was indicated a more complete examination of future shipments will be made.

Get at the real cause. That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets help arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, people rarely suffer from indigestion and stomach troubles.

Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Try Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound. Know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain. All druggists, 15c, 30c and 60c.

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief. Eat what you like.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair
—With—
Patricia Pitt

Yesterday was a gala day at the Twentieth Century Club when the Thurston School Alumnae Association held its benefit bridge party. Gay spring frocks galore made the auditorium bloom like a garden in mid-summer. And prints are again popular this season.

Mrs. A. Cameron Mann was smart in a brown and white sprigged crepe frock with the tricky sleeve terminating in white flannel [illegible] of green [illegible] orange [illegible] of red [illegible] a white [illegible] and she wore a brown [illegible] her [illegible] and a [illegible] straw hat.

Mrs. [illegible] B. Cunningham chose a [illegible] frock with the skirt of [illegible] and bodice of chartreuse [illegible] printed crepe and a black straw hat. Anita [illegible] publicity chairman, wore a black and white print with a touch of scarlet at the neckline and a scarlet sash. And her black straw hat had a dash of the same red. Blossom [illegible] was in a turquoise blue knitted ensemble with a black [illegible] was with Mrs. Harry [illegible] who wore black [illegible] with a crisp white organdie collar and black [illegible].

Seen at Bridge

Playing bridge at one of the tables was Mrs. Alice Stewart in brown and white crepe. B[illegible] Carahan [illegible] blue crepe [illegible] having a pale blue printed blouse and a blue straw hat. Mrs. Beth Burket in an [illegible] frock having the skirt of brown and white print, the top of white and a draped scarf matching the skirt, and Elene Schaefer who chose pansy green crepe with a matching turban.

Rita Overend and Betty Gott were among the aides selling cigarets and candy, and Rita wore a crepe frock of blue and white "Shepherd" checks with a blue turban and Betty wore navy blue crepe with a jaunty neck scarf tied in a bow and a blue hat.

Mrs. Voss Hutton I saw wearing a suit of wood brown crepe with a matching felt turban, and at another table were Virginia Elliott in brown and green, Euphemia Trimble in a rose, white and black print and Louise Bausman in pumpkin crepe with a black hat.

Thoughts on Shakespeare Given Club by Seibel

George Seibel, literary and dramatic critic of the Sun-Telegraph, gave the College Club "A Few Thoughts on Shakespeare" yesterday afternoon. He told of several visits to Stratford where he met a descendant of the Jaggard who published the First Folio. He also spoke of the Folger Library in Washington, now the finest Shakespearean collection in the world. He spoke too of old Shakespearean actors, declaring that the finest Othello was that of Tommaso Salvini, while the finest Hamlet was that of Edwin Booth. He characterized as absurd the Bacon theory and concluded by reading one of his own sonnets, "To My Bookbinder," which closes with the injunction to "bind up my Shakespeare in a human skin."

During the tea hour Mrs. J. Clyde Whetzel, chairman of hostesses, was assisted by Mrs. Norman B. Ward, Mrs. Scott N. Watt, Mrs. Charles M. Wellons and Mrs. Dean R. Wilson, while Mrs. Clarence B. Watkins and Mrs. William R. Work poured.

Lawyer Urges Aid For 'Wounded' of Economic War

Attorney Ella Graubart, well known Pittsburgh club woman, today lent her aid to the Family-Help-Family plan to care for 28,000 destitute families in the county.

Miss Graubart

In a statement Attorney Graubart said:

"In a war, even the enemy gives succor to the fallen and wounded. We are in an economic conflict. And the fallen and the wounded are our neighbors. We have not less pity than grim soldiers in battle. It is only because the economic disintegration is less vivid and arresting that we have been slow to help. But we know now that there is despair and suffering in 28,000 families in Allegheny County and we must help them through the Family-Help-Family plan."

The spring concert of the Woman's City Club Choral gave pleasure to a large audience in the William Penn Hotel last night. There was not a trivial note on the program for Mrs. Taylor Allderdice, who directs the singers, is an idealist and no less a person than the mighty John Sebastian Bach can be the foundation of her singing.

Mr. Lissfelt

The choral has made vast strides in its brief lifetime. Its number is growing and consequently better balanced and volumes of tone result. It is praiseworthy indeed that these ladies meet together for a short period weekly and sing excellent music.

Miss Marguerite Lang sang the Agnus Dei from the Bach B Minor Mass with fine dignity, to give the audience a foretaste of the coming Bethlehem Festivals, and Henry Harris played the Chromatic Fantasy and Fugue in a broad and authoritative style, with a Gigue of Bach as encore.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

EAST END SALES DRAW THRONGS

"East Liberty Days" yesterday and today, set aside by the East Liberty Chamber of Commerce as an occasion of bargain events, was declared a success today by A. Patrick Flood, manager of the chamber, after he visited leading stores of the district.

Thousands today continued to throng the East End business establishments to take advantage of the sales that featured the occasion. In addition to the special prices offered, each store also gave gift coupons which resulted in many persons obtaining floor lamps, radios, dinner sets, vacuum sweepers, clothing and other articles.

At two of the biggest stores it was said that the sales were greater than those of the same day last year when a similar bargain event was offered. Flood said that not only residents of the East Liberty-Homewood district took advantage of the sale, but persons from the East Boroughs and other sections of the county thronged into the East End.

Stores featuring the bargains under the "East Liberty Days" program, sponsored by the East Liberty Chamber of Commerce, will remain open again tonight until 10 o'clock.

OPEN FALK X-RAY ROOMS MONDAY

The Falk Clinic X-ray laboratories, occupying the middle section of eight rooms on the second floor of the clinic, will be opened to the public Monday morning, perfecting a great project in the campaign of a Pittsburgh family to "make life free from pain."

The laboratory apparatus in all of the eight rooms is "shock proof," so that the patient who touches the tables or sees any piece of apparatus will not know he is surrounded by anything but "ordinary" furniture.

The staff in charge consists of Dr. Joseph H. Baruch, director; Dr. John F. McCullough, Dr. Ralph Robinson, Dr. F. L. Schumacher, Dr. J. W. Ferguson and John Russell.

BLACK AND WHITE REMAINS FAVORITE FOR SPRING WEAR

—Sketched in Paris—

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, April 23.—Even if more monotones than prints are being shown this spring, there is no chance for monotony to creep into the sartorial scene. For much use is made of contrast, not only contrast of color, but contrast in materials. There has been some use of wool with satin, especially in black clothes and wool with crepe de chine is another very popular material alliance that is favored here. One does not see so much of the black skirt with the bodice top made of two different fabrics in black and another color. Appliqued and set-in bands are good for the striped effect that characterize so many of the encrusted bodices that one sees now. Black with white is more than holding its own. It is being shown in every house at present, even if it was not so prevalent at the majority of the collection. After all, the houses have to show novelties along with the good old stand-bys if they are to do business and progress. The thing to do is to take the old reliables and dress them up so that they look newer than the newest ideas. And this is constantly being done with black and white.

* * *

SHOWN IS A PERFECTLY grand ensemble in black and white, a most distinguished Mainbocher presentation. It also features a good material alliance. The dress and cape are of black woolen. The bodice is white crepe de chine with encrustations of the black woolen in wide bands. A raised, Empire waistline is given the skirt by the addition of a high corselet piece seamed at the natural waistline. This curves up into a high point at the center front and the bodice is shirred into it at either side of the point. The bands radiate from this point. The cheerful looking little wrap is cut in the form of a snug, buttoned jacket with wide capes in lieu of sleeves. One sees many such ensembles here just now.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

(During absence of Mr. Winchell this column is being conducted by Paul Yawitz)

Suicide Room!

I live in a suicide room
High over Washington Square,
Where the sun peeps in every morning
To see if I'm still there.

And the moon looks in every evening
In the stealth of its silver barrage;
And chuckles and lingers a moment
To wish me a bon voyage.

And all through the day there's a south wind
That darts through my muddled domain;
And it tags me and turns me and whispers
Why go on with the pain?

Yet down in my heart there's a clamor
To live and to laugh and to sin;
But the sun and the moon and the south wind
Are stronger than I—and they win!

Simileads!

Yoo-hoo! Mr. Wilstach! Idwal Jones: Hind wheels whirling like egg beaters. . . . Sax Rohmer: Gleaming teeth like combers on a moonlit sea. . . . Hildegarde Bolson: He was waiting patiently, like a puppy that wags his tail and then sits back hoping for attention. . . . Andrew Pentland: His intentions were as transparent as cellophane pajamas. . . . Ted Cook: Indifferent as an actor reading another's press clippings.

Burns Mantle: Funny as the American widow trying to count francs in Paris. . . . Arthur (Bugs) Baer: Clothes are like whiskers. No matter in what shape they are they're still a barometer of years that have gone by. . . . Arthur Brisbane: To investigate the Stock Exchange now is as sad as looking into a nest full of young robins when the cat has killed the mother bird—you see nothing but beaks wide open and little yellow throats pleading for worms.

Broadway: where the only time they praise you is when it will do you no good.—Milt Gross.

The Marital Arena!

Dave Murray vows that nowadays a widow is a lady whose husband died before she could divorce him.

On Exhibit!

Grant Withers ran into Alice Joyce for the first time in several years at Phil Rosen's celeb party and the screen stars began reminiscing.

"When was the last time you saw me?" inquired Grant.

"Oh, it was less than a year ago," replied the lovely Alice. "I saw one of your pictures in Philly—"

Grant interrupted with a full-face beam.

Spring Fever.

Spring has come and I must hark
To the lovers in the park,
To the growing things that flood
Wonder in my sluggish blood;
I must sniff the air and cope
With this restless thing called
"hope."
WISH and WANT for God knows what . . .
Will I get it? I shall not!
—Jane Sayre.

Broadway: where they slap you on the back in the hope that it's sunburned.—J. Levine.

The New York Scene:

She was old and wrinkled and the rags hung from her withered form like the faded leaves of a willow tree. Shuffling into a Madison ave. coffee-pot, she begged a bowl of soup.

The proprietor sat her down in a far corner. Tears streamed down her cheeks. "They buried me old man in Potter's Field today. He was a louse, a downright louse," she sobbed, "but he was the only company I had."

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Mr. Seibel

In real life it is so hard—almost impossible—to get the goods on a crooked judiciary, that it is refreshing to see justice done on the screen if nowhere else. And justice is done in "Night Court," the film drama of a vice ring which is shown at the Penn Theater this week.

Walter Huston is the villainous judge who railroads an innocent woman to the workhouse for six months because he thinks she knows about his secret bank account of $60,000. Anita Page is the mother of a gleeful baby and also the innocent victim of the villainous judge. Phillips Holmes is her husband, a taxi driver who finally kidnaps the judge and gives him the third degree to the great satisfaction of the audience. Lewis Stone is the upright judge who is going to drag the vice ring to the bar of justice—and gets murdered for his good intentions.

All of which makes as thrilling a mellerdrama as ever you saw. Mark Hellinger has put together the story and Bayard Veiller supplied the dramatic machinery. The picture is full of good actors and exciting scenes, and while coincidence plays a large role the chief criticism that could be offered is that, in real life, crooks in office usually get off scot free. The wicked judge either disappears or can prove that the $60,000 was given to him as a reward for being kind to an old lady's pet dog.

That's why people will surely get much satisfaction at seeing justice done—though only on the screen.

In the stage show two famous pairs furnish the stellar acts. Col. Stoopnagle and Budd dispense the same delightful nonsense they furnish on the air. Buck and Bubbles alternate rhythm with humorous sallies. Besides these amusing features there is some ballet dancing of beautiful and difficult technique by Olive Sibley and Ivan Triesault, and the Chester Hale Girls are presented in a beautiful ballet school ensemble, the best dance show of the season.

Life in Capital Is Just Shorts And Senators

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Shorts and Senators are weeping on one another's lapels in Washington.

Investigation proves one thing. You can turn up a bad oyster in a month with an "R" in it.

This soiree in the capital swings the power of balance for once and for all. We're either going to have more shorts or more Senators.

What we need is a little more of that charming candor. You tell me your racket and I'll tell you mine.

A short is a man who burns his bridge before the other guy gets to it. Then the short takes the ferry.

It's a lovely caper. And if the Senators haven't heard about it yet we might as well get out the memorandum pad and compile a new sucker list.

The Senators have certainly asked a lot of questions this session. No wonder they're willing to take a 10 per cent reduction in salary.

Come to think of it, why should we pay those guys at all for going to school?

Three English Players With Ann Harding

Three former English players of note are currently appearing in scenes of "Westward Passage," now in production starring Ann Harding. They are Juliette Compton and Lucy Dorane, both stars in their own right on the British screen, and Laurence Olivier, until a year ago one of the most popular leading men on the English stage and screen. Olivier is now playing opposite Ann Harding in the picture, while the Misses Compton and Dorane have important supporting roles.

More Garbos, Producers' Hope

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1932, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, April 23.

The heart of every producer in Hollywood beats with a single hope—to find another Garbo.

To this end, Carl Laemmle, Jr., is preparing to launch Tala Birell upon her starring career in "Broken Dreams of Hollywood."

Greta Garbo

Miss Birell is the Roumanian actress who came over here in November, 1930, to make the German version of "The Command to Love," and who returned last July to begin a long term contract with Universal. Since then, she has spent her time perfecting her English. Her first test role was in "Mountains of Flame," which you'll probably see under the title of "The Doomed Battalion."

In Europe, the actress played on the Vienna stage and on the screen under the direction of the late F. W. Murnau.

Her new picture, "Broken Dreams of Hollywood," is from the pen of Ben Orkow, and will be directed by Hobart Henley. It goes into production within the month preceding Zola's "Nana," which Universal originally announced for the star.

Of interest is the fact that there's a mild epidemic of Hollywood stories being filmed right now. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is represented with "It's Got To Be," Big R-K-O with "The Truth About Hollywood," Harold Lloyd with "Movie Crazy" and Universal again with "Once In a Lifetime."

YOUR DAILY GOSSIP

While making a fight scene for "Society Girl," James Dunn took a sock that knocked three ribs loose from their cartilage. Result is he's under the care of Dr. Phillip Ayer and will be laid up for a week. . . .

James Dunn

Newest form of entertainment in Hollywood is to fly your guests to Agua Caliente for the week-end. Greta Nissen and Weldon Heyburn are hosts to a party next Saturday. . . . Wonder why Maurice Chevalier always looks so glum at luncheon? . . . Jobyna Ralston may fly to New York to join the Norman McLeods on their European trip. And if Dick Arlen doesn't have to make "Come On Marines" he'll go along too. Right now it looks as if the picture will be indefinitely postponed. Arlen and Paramount are talking contract too. . . . Constance Talmadge was hostess at a luncheon party.

Hollywood's most brilliant audience in months saw Colleen Moore win a triumph in "A Church Mouse." Sitting in the front row were Mervyn Leroy, Ginger Rogers and Jack Dempsey. Estelle Taylor, very stunning in black, was with Ernst Lubitsch. Bill Haines squired Alice Glazer. Jack Oakie brought his ma. Norma Shearer's hat always is the smartest of them all. . . . Loretta and Polly Ann Young and Sally Blane made a pretty threesome. Dolores Del Rio, all in gray, was with Cedric Gibbons. Barney Glazer and Sharon Lynn also were in their party. Harold Lloyd and Mildred sat back of me.

After the opening, Colleen had three parties given in her honor. Mrs. B. P. Schulberg, Jetta Goudal and Colleen's mother were hostesses.

Today, Colleen was out at M. G. M., which may mean something.

M. G. M. Gives Graves New Contract

Ralph Graves and Ruth Selwyn have been signed to new contracts by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Graves will not only act in pictures, but will serve as writer and director as well. He has been seen in "Submarine," "Dirigible" and "Flight" among many other films.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.,
April 23.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Did you read that Senate Wall street investigation? The Senate sent out and got a fellow named Gray. Well, he didn't ask the usual Senate questions. Gray knew where the body was buried, and poor Mr. Whitney, who had had a cinch on the stand up to then, why, it looked like he was going to break down and confess.

Will Rogers

Twenty-four thousand patriotic Americans, and some splendid friends from France, were all betting against the country, and we used to arrest men for just saying something against it. Morgan kept his German bonds up to 90 till he got 'em all peddled, now they are 35. "Hot Cha."

Yours,
WILL.

BITS OF LIFE
All in a Day
By Mark Hellinger

Body in the Garage

HERE, I THINK, is one of the most interesting law problems that will ever come to your attention. The case was sent to me by George Towers, of the Chicago police department, and I thank him heartily for providing me with a piece of material that has already confused several very excellent New York attorneys.

Well, let's get going. Instead of doing it as a legal question, I'll write it for you as a short story. And if I grow a trifle too enthusiastic as I go along, please pardon me. The story has really had me daffy ever since I received it. . . .

The Miltons were poor people. They lived in a little frame house on the outskirts of a large city, and I don't suppose either the husband or wife ever had much happiness together. They had been married some five or six years when they moved to the new neighborhood.

The husband's occupation was a mystery. Some said he drove a truck when he could find work and others insisted that he was a small-time gunman. None of them really knew, and I doubt if the wife was much wiser than they.

One thing, however, everybody knew. There wasn't a man or woman in the vicinity who didn't understand that the Miltons were staging some excellent battles. There would be hoarse cries from the man and startling shrieks from the woman.

The neighbors, of course, blamed the man. They didn't know anything about the circumstances then and they don't today. But when a husky dud is living with a frail damsel and one of the two is getting slapped around, I imagine it's only human to give the lady the conversational break.

Came the night when there was the fiercest fight of all. The woman screamed in terrible fashion. The foulest of language poured from the man's lips. A chair went through a window and fell to the walk below. Several of the neighbors were tempted to rush in and put a stop to the battle. But suddenly, after one piercing shriek from Mrs. Milton, everything grew very still. A few seconds later the lights went out. And the neighbors went back to bed.

Several days went by before anybody missed the woman. As a matter of fact, I think the neighbors missed the arguments before they suspected that anything had happened to Mrs. Milton. People can become so accustomed to a routine that when anything is omitted they grow suspicious. When a week had passed and there was still no sign of the woman the police were called in.

The next day, when the husband left the house, the officers walked in. They found very definite traces of the last, brutal fight between husband and wife. Blood stains on the rug. Torn dresses. A broken table that had evidently been hurled against that hole in the wall. And so on. When the husband returned, he was immediately seized and questioned.

His explanation was simple.

"If you fellers think I killed her," he muttered, "you're crazy. I hit her, sure I did. I've been hittin' her right along because she's been crazy about another guy. She'd throw his name at me when I had a coupla drinks under my belt and that would drive me crazy.

"I was pretty stewed the last time I seen her. We had a fight. And when I waked up in the morning, she was gone. That's all I know, fellers, and you ain't gettin' nothin' more outa me."

They quizzed him, of course, at length. They asked him where the other man lived. He said he didn't know. They did everything possible to get a confession from him. But they got nowhere.

Everything pointed to the belief that this husband had murdered his wife. The neighbor's testimony about the violent quarrels. The husband's unsavory past. The bloodstains. The complete disappearance of the wife. The stillness after the last terrific shriek. Yes, everything was present for a murder charge. Everything but the body. And without that, where were the police? I ask you. Don't ask me.

They held the husband for some time while they searched and searched. They let him go, and then they picked him up again. And just about four months after the first quiz, they found a woman's body in the tiny garage in the rear of the frame house.

The body had been hacked to bits. Nobody was willing positively to identify the remains. It was in such a state that identification was almost impossible. But the police dug up a distant relative and brought the lady on. She looked—and she nodded. Yes, that was Susie. Susie had had a mark on her left hand just like that. Yes, she was positive.

Milton was tried for the murder of his wife. He was lucky enough to have a conscientious attorney assigned to him, and the evidence against him was purely circumstantial. He finally wound up by being convicted of the murder and was sent to the penitentiary at Joliet, Ill., for some 15 years. He had been let off, I guess, comparatively lightly. . . .

The man served 14 years before he was again turned loose in the world. He skipped the big city this time and wandered into one of the smaller towns in the Middle West in search of a job. He was sitting in a beanery and gazing gloomily through the window when he saw his wife walk by. She had been alive all this time and had made no effort to save him from the murder rap. And all she would have had to do, of course, was to walk into the courtroom.

He walked from the restaurant and trailed her. The man was wild with rage, almost insane. His nails digging into his palms and his lips in a bitter line, he followed her every step. She walked into a dingy house and up a flight of stairs. Just as she opened the door he nailed her. He placed a hand over her mouth, slammed the door behind him and threw her into a chair.

"You're the lowest rat that ever lived," he muttered. "You let me serve 14 years for something I never did. Well, I'll fool them. They said I did it—and I'm going to make good for them. You're going to die."

This time there was no question about it. He knocked the woman out with a punch, dragged her into the kitchen and finished the job with a bread knife. He was just stealing from the apartment when another man walked in. There was a struggle. The police walked in. The body was discovered.

And thus, for the second time Milton was arrested and charged with the murder of his wife. . . .

* * *

The case is yet to come to trial. And many of you are going to tell me, I suppose, that no man can be convicted twice for the same crime. His lawyer argues that way and says Milton must be released. But after all, is it the same crime? How can it be when one happened some 15 years after the other?

Yet there it is. The man was punished for the killing of his wife even though it was a crime he didn't commit. He paid his debt. Has society the right to punish him again?

A swell problem, I think.

Leaping Love In Warner

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

If you are satisfied with seeing the off-with-the-old-love-on-with-the-new theme played in a new groove, "Man Wanted," current on the Warner screen, with Kay Francis featured, you will get your money's worth. This time it is the big business woman, instead of man, who finds solace in the arms of the very efficient secretary. David Manners is the sec., and his romantic experiences include love-making with funny little Una Merkle, in which she is the sole aggressor, Dave being a little reluctant, but not enough to prevent Una from steering the bark of l'amour to the pier of betrothal—where it is wrecked.

So the fact that it was one-sided lets David out of any suspicion that he is two-timing the fervid Una, and it is not until after Kay's husband, who is none other than our own Kenneth Thomson, reveals that their marriage has been a mistake, which he leaves for Paris to remedy, that Kay and Dave make up their minds that they should try the "dictation" game from the matrimonial angle. Especially it is easy after Una gives Kay a call-down for working her fiance overtime and hands the boy back his ring.

Andy Devine is in the cast, chiefly for comedy purposes, and the last we see of him is when he is trying to make Una believe that he cannot accept her proposal because matrimony is against all tradition in his family. But aware of Una's technique, one feels tradition is doomed to be shattered.

Mr. Anderson to Adopt Political Story

Maxwell Anderson, one of America's foremost playwrights and scenarists, has been signed by Columbia Pictures to do the screen story for "Washington Merry-Go-Round," which will be a sparkling story for "Washington Merry-Go-ciety." Anderson, who achieved overnight prominence with the play, "What Price Glory," on which he collaborated with Lawrence Stallings, is also the author of the stage hits "Outside Looking In," "Saturday's Children," "Gods of Lightning," "Elizabeth the Queen" and "Night Over Taos." His screen achievements are of equal note. He contributed the story of "Cockeyed World," the adaptation and dialogue of "All Quiet on the Western Front" and the dialogue of "Trader Horn."

Lion-Baiting In Hearst News

THE GLOBE TROTTER

The most thrilling lion pictures ever shown on the screen are contained in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News. The complete mastery of man over beast is demonstrated by Prof. Alfred Kaden of Hamburg, Germany, who puts lions and bears through truly amazing feats. One of them is two lions sea-sawing, rocked by a bear standing in the center. Other pictures show Capt. Gus Schneider entering a cage of 50 lions. Facing the roaring, clawing mass of beasts he arouses them to a frenzy by throwing them food and then after restoring order puts them through their paces.

Paul de Bruyn, young German, captures the famous Boston Marathon Classic which this year also is an Olympic tryout. Paul finishes the run of 26 miles over country roads in 2 hours 33 minutes, only 30 seconds behind the record. There were 220 entrants, among them Clarence De Mar, seven time winner of the race. De Bruyn, although a German, is a fireman in a New York hotel. There is a graphic description of the race by the Globe Trotter.

AN UNUSUAL EVENT

Scores of thousands of devout Catholics participate in a [illegible] and picturesque religious celebration in the Valley of the Loire, France. The ceremony is in honor of the Ebony Virgin and is observed only when the Feast of the Annunciation falls on Good Friday. This happens about once every century, and the ceremony will not be observed again for 73 years.

President Doumer of France witnesses a spectacular display of Arabian horsemanship when the famous Spahis from France's Algerian protectorate give a sensational exhibition in the Grand Palais in Paris. An immense crowd cheers the African cavalrymen.

The opening of the racing season in Eastern New York sees a large and enthusiastic crowd at the Jamaica track. The most sensational race of the day is the Paumonok, which is won by Questionnaire over Hi-Jack after one of the most sensational finishes ever seen on a track.

MR. MELLON ARRIVES

Andrew W. Mellon, former secretary of the treasury, arrives at Southampton, England, to take up his new duties as United States ambassador to Great Britain. Before leaving the ship Ambassador Mellon receives the Lord Mayor of Southampton, who is wearing his official regalia. The Lord Mayor extends a hearty greeting to the new envoy, and Mr. Mellon replies in a short speech of thanks. The Ambassador then steps onto English soil to the cheers of a crowd gathered on the pier.

With the skyline of Manhattan as a back-drop, Dorothy Lieba, 3½-year-old adagio dancer and acrobat, gives a sensational exhibition of her agility. She is claimed to be the youngest girl athlete in the world, and probably is.

Davis Screen Presents 'Beauty and Boss'

"Beauty and the Boss," based on the play, "A Church Mouse," opened yesterday in the Davis. EXPERT ON TAX OPTIMISTIC IN VIEWS

Future Can Be Faced With Equanimity if Prudence Is Used, Economist Says

By MERRYLE RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, April 23.—As the Senate grapples with the urgent problem of revising the House tax bill, it is [illegible] to get the well [illegible] views of competent [illegible].

Neither [illegible] emotional [illegible] nothing [illegible] of spe[illegible]

Mr. Rukeyser

[illegible] economist [illegible] expert [illegible] Dr. [illegible] The Nation.

"The potential resources of the country are so gigantic that we may face with equanimity a fiscal future which if informed with intelligence and a prudent regard for the economic and social consequences of taxation will unite ample revenue with moderate and fairly apportioned burdens. It is good fortune the expenditures of war can be reduced and if a more efficient system of budgetary control can be adopted the future will be wholly without reason for discouragement."

In [illegible] a basis for augmenting [illegible] from taxation, Dr. [illegible] stresses three main points.

He says:

"The first is that while Democratic progress everywhere emphasizes the growing importance of direct taxes or taxes on wealth, no country has ever been able to rely upon them alone. Indirect taxes formed the exclusive source of our normal federal revenue up to a very recent period, and must continue to supply a substantial share in the future.

CHANGE NEEDED

"The next point is the need of envisaging our revenue system as a whole. The old-time simple situation, with federal revenues alimented from indirect taxes and state and local revenues furnished by the general property tax, has disappeared. On the one hand the federal government has had to utilize direct taxes, while the states and localities have not only changed in large measure from personal to semi-personal taxes, but are increasingly compelled to rely upon a different criterion for measuring wealth.

"The consequence is that federal and state governments are trenching on each other's field. . . . The crying need of the future is a co-ordination of our revenue system whereby some semblance of order may be introduced into the fast-growing fiscal chaos and as a result of which due consideration may be paid not only to the total burden on the taxpayer but also to the respective claims of state and federal finance.

"The third point in any estimate of our future fiscal system is the difficulty into which we have fallen because of the existence of tax-exempt securities. When the system first developed, it was of little fiscal consequence. But now, with over $30,000,000,000 of outstanding tax-exempt securities, the situation is full of menace—the removal of this anomaly is a condition precedent to a successful functioning of a well-considered tax system."

Low Prices Affect Rubber Shipments

LONDON, April 23.—Symington and Wilson state that evidence is accumulating that current low prices for crude rubber are at last tending to reduce shipments. They estimate that April shipments from Malaya will not exceed 32,000 tons against 43,453 tons a year ago. It is also reported that arrivals of Dutch native rubber at Singapore have fallen heavily this month.

The London rubber market has been steady with business very restricted [illegible] state.

LIFE INSURANCE SALES DROP

HARTFORD, April 23.—The trend in life insurance sales, upward during recent months, dropped in March, according to the Life Insurance Sales Research Bureau, the volume sold in the United States during March being 17 per cent below March, 1931. This decrease was experienced generally in every section of the country. The New England states, together with the mountain section suffered the largest decrease. The three states on the Pacific Coast showed up best.

For the first quarter of 1932 every section of the country showed a loss compared to a year ago and the United States as a whole experienced a 9 per cent decrease.

NEW YORK, April 23.—(AP)—The advisory committee of the Association of Railway executives held a closed meeting yesterday to discuss "pending problems," but reached no conclusions, announcement after adjournment said.

During the three hours of discussion it was stated the highway trucking question was not mentioned. Twenty-one railroad executives attended the session.

EXPENSE CUTS AID READING EARNINGS

March Gross Largest of Year So Far; Gain Carried To Net Operating Income

PHILADELPHIA, April 23.—Preliminary figures indicate the Reading Company set in March new high marks for the year to date in gross and net operating income.

Gross is expected to approximate $4,900,000, compared with $4,716,329 in February and $4,740,416 in January. In March, 1931, gross was $6,594,595. Net railway operating income in March is expected to reach $750,000, which will compare with $555,869 in February and $469,927 in January. In March, 1931, net was $585,150.

Complete figures, which will be released early next week, will show that the major portion of the March increase over February in gross has been carried down to net operating income due to the strong control which the management has on operating expenses and to the high efficiency with which the property is being operated.

COAL HAUL GAINS

Following a comparatively poor first quarter, coal dealers are hoping for an improvement in business in the second quarter, based on the drain on coal bins caused by the cool spring and on an effort to get the public to take advantage of existing reduced prices to lay in their fuel supply for next winter, the Reading will benefit from any stimulation in the anthracite business.

Loadings in April have been running around 22 per cent behind last year, which is a slightly better showing than March, when a decrease of 24.1 per cent from the preceding year was reported. For the first quarter of 1932 Reading showed a decrease of 22.4 per cent in car loadings as compared with the first quarter of 1931.

NO BANK LOANS

The Reading Company continues in sound financial condition and able to provide for its financial requirements. The balance sheet at December 31, 1931, showed current assets of $13,558,094 and current liabilities of $10,417,013. Cash at that time amounted to $3,514,554 against $8,632,412 a year before, a decrease of $5,117,858, but the company has ample free assets which it can sell to replenish its till when necessary.

Reading had no bank loans at the close of 1931, and no bank loans have been incurred since. It has no past due bills, its only obligations being current accounts.

Wall Street Spectator

Many Prefer Sidelines Until Action on Steel

International News Service.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Maybe another Rockefeller will turn the market tide. John D., Sr., did it in 1929 with his famous 1,000,000-share order for Standard Oil of New Jersey. Yesterday Percy Rockefeller said there were future fortunes kicking around Wall Street. The belief still persists, however, that the sidelines are preferable until the United States Steel meeting Tuesday joins ancient history.

Weakness in the rails is disturbing in view of their influence on speculative sentiment.

Yet one rail authority, while still sour on the group, believes the bear side of the rails is "all washed up."

There is going to be a lot of speculation about what stocks Percy Rockefeller had in mind when he forecast their sensational comeback. . . . He is known to be interested in Air Reduction and United States Alcohol. Columbian Carson also is a Rockefeller property through large holdings held by Standard Oil of New Jersey interests. . . . But this may or may not mean anything, for big people never "marry" a stock, especially if it goes sour, and frequently go far afield when they know there's a killing to be made. . . . Of course, the big trick is to get the $100,000 anyway. . . . Rockefeller's testimony is interesting at this time, since there has been evidence of long pull scale down accumulation in a few stocks, like Consolidated Gas, in the last few days.

The fires of liquidation are still burning, however, and as long as stocks continue to be hit on every bulge there isn't likely to be any sustained rally.

Action of Ingersoll Rand suggests a further downward revision of its $3 dividend with possibility of omission due to the company's poor showing last year.

Netherlands Bank Withdraws Gold

NEW YORK, April 23.—The first of the shipments of earmarked gold held here for the account of the Bank of Netherlands was revealed in yesterday's gold statement of the New York Federal Reserve Bank. The bank reported withdrawals for export amounting to $14,363,900, of which $13,544,900 was from stock of gold held under earmark for foreign account.

The bank reported receipt of $99,300 from Mexico, and has been notified that $114,000 has been received at San Francisco from China.

LONDON GIRDS FOR EXCHANGE BATTLE

Chamberlain Favors Pool To Combat Speculators' Attacks on U. S. Dollar

NEW YORK, April 23.—(AP.)—Reports received in Wall street from London indicate foreign exchange speculators, especially those who have been giving the British pound sterling a whirl, may be in for a hard summer and an equally tough winter.

The London news was that Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, has proposed a $600,000,000 pool for the accumulation of foreign balances by the British treasury when such action becomes necessary to check the gyrations of the frequently volatile pound.

For some time the Bank of England has been attempting to keep the pound down to a reasonable level. Although large amounts of sterling were offered at various times, the British were somewhat handicapped by the completion of England's credit payments to America. Large purchases of dollars automatically put a check on the ascending pound. But with the credits cleaned up, sterling again assumed strength.

'WHISPERING' ATTACKS

With the coming into existence of the proposed Chamberlain pool, it is believed England can put the foreign exchange speculators in such a position they will hesitate to operate so freely against the dollar and in favor of the pound.

Recent attacks on American currency have been attributed to a big European speculative pool, although no definite facts on this aggregation have been available. Nevertheless, New York financial circles believe these speculators have been directly responsible for the many misleading rumors circulated in continental capitals concerning American conditions.

While the "whispering" campaign against the dollar has met with failure, generally, it is believed the pool is still in existence and planning further assaults on American money.

POOL WELL 'HEELED'

Members of the speculators' ring, it is said, are extremely wealthy, having made huge fortunes in the fall of the German mark a few years ago and in the depressions which descended upon a number of other currencies. These "gamblers," as they are referred to in Wall street, are understood to have exceptionally strong political and banking connections.

In the more recent foray of the pool against Dutch guilders and the dollar, it is reported the speculators suffered a sizeable loss because many bankers of New York and Amsterdam, realizing the situation, refused to do business with the agents of the organization or lowered their bids so much that the sale of dollars or guilders became a hazardous operation.

With the inauguration of the Chamberlain pool, and the possible co-operation of large American financial interests, it is expected the speculative aggregation will be shorn of its power to such an extent that it may have to dissolve.

Kreuger Committee Retains Untermyer

NEW YORK, April 23.—(AP.)—The international probe now being conducted into the Kreuger debacle took a new turn with the formation of an independent protective committee of security holders of Kreuger and Toll Company and International Match Corporation.

Samuel Untermyer and Siegfried F. Hartman have been retained as counsel. Mr. Untermyer is noted for his cross-examinations of public officials and corporation chieftains in the past which have frequently elicited striking testimony.

WEEKLY BANK CLEARINGS

NEW YORK, April 23.—(AP.)—Bank clearings this week were somewhat larger than they were in the preceding week, but still are very much below the amount recorded in April a year ago. The total for all leading cities in the United States, as reported to Dun's Review, of $4,912,267,000 was 41.5 per cent below that of last year. At New York City, clearings were $3,156,865,000, a reduction of 46.1 per cent, while the total for the cities outside of New York of $1,755,402,000 was 30.9 per cent smaller.

The increase in bank clearings this week over last week was approximately $241,000,000, whereas a year ago it was $454,000,000. A part of the larger clearings this week appeared at New York, and probably represented income tax payments, the latter apparently being smaller this year than a year ago.

The figures at leading cities, as compiled by R. G. Dun & Co., showing decreases as compared with same period a year ago follow (totals in thousands):

WEATHER AIDS RETAIL SALES

More favorable weather conditions have stimulated general retail sales to some extent with an improved demand noted for millinery, shoes and the cheaper grades of women's wearing apparel, says Dun's weekly review.

Men's wear lines continues to move rather slowly, with prices at a lower level in an effort to move merchandise more freely. There has been a moderate increase in demand for sporting goods, although the business is considerably below normal. Demand for builders' hardware and contractors' supplies, also lumber, brick, etc. continue slow, and building contracts are very light.

Collections are averaging slow in most lines, with a slight improvement in some quarters.

STEADY PRICES BUOY STEEL SENTIMENT

Improvement in Banking Situation Also Factor In Raising Trade Hopes

By B. E. V. LUTY

With offsetting gains and losses in several districts, steel production this week was unchanged at about 21 per cent. The Pittsburgh and Chicago districts both remain at about 20 per cent, while the Birmingham district has moved up.

There is a distinctly more hopeful feeling in the steel trade, due to the greatly improved banking situation, the stability of steel prices and the recent disappearance of downward trend in steel demand generally.

All finished steel prices have been quite steady for some time past as the stabilization movement took hold, but in some lines there remain some deliveries on old contracts. These are all to be completed next week and then the test of prices will be completed. Sellers are now reasonably confident that prices will hold at all points.

Steel buying by the automobile trade outside of Ford has increased only slightly in the last 30 days, but appears to be on the up grade. Ford has lately gotten into the market in a real way, but the purchases are still relatively small as car production has not yet risen even to 1,000 a day, according to Detroit reports.

RAILROAD BUYING LIGHT

Railroad buying has been increasing at a rate so slow as to prove somewhat disappointing even to those who thought they were making conservative forecasts.

Fabricated structural steel lettings have run light in the last three weeks, but lettings since March 1 have been at as heavy a rate as in the first two months of the year. The tonnage is chiefly for public buildings and bridges.

Tin mill operations continue to increase and have now crossed the 50 per cent line, with prospects of further increases.

According to steel trade tradition the time of year is now passed in which there could naturally be a really substantial recovery in steel demand if such were to occur at all in the first half. Autumn improvement after the usual quiet mid-year period has always begun in August when it occurred at all.

The Pittsburgh district scrap market lost a little in tone last week and this week has recorded some definite declines, heavy melting steel being quotable 25 cents lower at $9.75 to $10.25, making the first distinct change in six months.

WAGE RATE DISCUSSED

The steel industry continues its efforts to reduce costs and adapt its manufacturing methods to low operating rates, this being a new field, as it used to be held that a steel plant could not run with any efficiency at all unless it had a rate of at least 60 per cent or thereabouts. The matter is made still more difficult by the stagger system of labor employment, but in general this means rotation of men rather than rotation in operation of equipment, the most efficient units being used.

Recent statements in certain quarters that a wage reduction was being considered have not been verified but with corporate losses the rule there is no assurance wages will be maintained, when there has been nothing but a 10 per cent reduction from the peak rate.

STOCK MARKET STILL DRIFTS DOWNWARD

Selling All but Dries Up in Dull Trading; Majority of Losses Only Fractional

NEW YORK, April 23—(AP.)—Selling all but dried up in the early trading in today's stock market, but there was still a downdrift in prices.

American Oil, Union Pacific, Alaska Juneau and Borden lost as much as a point, and issues off about ½ during the first half hour included American Telephone, Allied Chemical, New York Central, North American and Santa Fe. Trading was extremely apathetic but buyers were even scarcer than sellers.

The statement of Percy A. Rockefeller before the Senate committee that he had covered his short commitments and was now long of stocks furnished an example widely noted of one so-called short who had reversed his opinion of future prospects.

The weekly trade reviews also contained a modicum of encouragement. While these offered too many reservations to justify outright enthusiasm they at least showed that gains reported during the week had offset further losses.

Improvement was noted especially in the oil industry following recent price advances and this betterment served to offset further concern that might have arisen over the procession of red figures reported by most leading oil companies for last year. The latest addition to this list was the $4,000,000 loss reported by Socony-Vacuum.

A further display of increasing world confidence in the dollar appeared in early foreign exchange dealings. The British pound sterling was off ⅛ cent to $3.74⅛ and the French franc dipped still further below the outgoing gold point, declining 1-16 point to 3.95 15-16 cents.

Glass Bill Would Aid In Releasing Funds in Nation's Closed Banks

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

ONE OF THE important features of the Glass banking bill, now before the Senate, is the machinery the act proposes to set up to aid in liquidation of closed banks.

The bill would provide for the formation of a Federal Liquidating Corporation. This organization would purchase or make loans on the assets of closed banks, either national or state. It would be permitted to assist in the liquidation of banks already closed as well as institutions which may close at any time in the future.

The capital of the organization would be drawn from three sources. First of all, a federal appropriation would provide a paid in surplus of $125,000,000. Member banks of the Federal Reserve System must subscribe for class A stock to the extent of one-quarter of 1 per cent of their total time and demand deposits. This stock would bear 6 per cent cumulative dividends, but would be non-voting. The amount of each bank's subscription would be adjusted annually in line with its deposits. Half of each bank's subscription would be payable in 90 days and the balance would be subject to call.

* * *

Reserve Banks to Put Up Quarter of Surplus

EACH OF THE 12 Federal Reserve banks would be required to subscribe for B stock in an amount equivalent to one-fourth of its surplus. This stock would not bear dividends. One half of this subscription would be payable July 1, 1932, and the remainder would be subject to call upon 90 days' notice.

The corporation may also issue bonds, notes or debentures to an amount equivalent to twice its capitalization and may sell its short term non-interest bearing notes at a discount.

The bill contains no indication of the amount of capital which might be realized for this organization, but it seems quite likely that it would be adequate to release a large volume of the funds now tied up in closed banks.

* * *

To Buy Assets of Suspended Banks

THE CAPITAL of the Liquidation Corporation would be immediately available to purchase the most desirable assets of the great number of closed banks in this country. This would make the distribution of dividends to depositors possible in a much shorter space of time than would ordinarily be required.

If the corporation should realize more from the liquidation of the assets of a bank than the price it paid, it must turn the excess over to the receiver of the bank after deducting a liquidation fee of 8 per cent. Another source of income for the liquidation corporation would arise from the retention of income derived from the purchased bank assets.

STOCK EXCHANGE TOPICS

Union Pacific Suffers Loss in Transfer of Holdings.

The Union Pacific Railroad during 1931 is understood to have sold its holdings of Railroad Securities Company common and preferred stock to the Kansas City Industrial Land Company, an affiliate of the Union Pacific, which owns about 85 per cent of the land company's stock. The transaction was purely a "family matter," but involved a substantial loss to Union Pacific, which, it is understood, was charged to profit and loss surplus account. Railroad Securities Company owns a large block of Illinois Central Railroad stock.

Recent pronounced weakness in Southern Pacific is quite amply explained by the road's statistics for March and the first quarter. The road reports a drop of $4,719,163 in gross for March by comparison with last year, and shows a net operating deficit of $101,236 for the month against net operating income of $1,177,754 in March, 1931. For the three months combined gross disclosed a contraction of $13,767,000 resulting in a net operating deficit of $907,441 contrasted with net operating income of $2,128,000 reported for the first quarter last year.

April 7 and 8 were days which witnessed heavy covering of short commitments in the market, a compilation setting forth the short interest outstanding on those days reveals. Yet the averages for both days reveal the trend of the market was downward, the last having lost ground on both days. The decline occurred in the face of a reduction in the short account in American Telephone from 201,877 shares to 74,937 shares, for example, and a shrinkage in the short position in Steel common from 361,689 shares to 160,765 shares.

Proximity of United States Steel's dividend meeting looms large in speculative sentiment. Although only the die-hard optimists hold out hope for a payment on the common, there is probably some skepticism as to whether the stock, or indeed the market, has fully discounted an omission. The size of the expected deficit for the first quarter is naturally a matter of concern, for it will reflect to what extent reduced costs could counteract a very dull three-month business period. The meeting will be held next Tuesday.

On the theory that the recent price of Atchison has discounted many of the possibilities of the coming months, there is said to have been good long pull buying in the issue recently. This has been responsible for some of the rather impressive recoveries in the issue while industrials were declining.

The popular anticipation is that Standard Gas and Electric is likely to reduce the dividend on the common stock in the not distant future, with a $2 a share annual basis being mentioned in the discussions.

SOCONY LOSS BIG IN 1931

NEW YORK, April 23—(AP)—The report for 1931 of the Socony-Vacuum Corporation, the first to be issued following the consolidation last year of the Standard Oil of New York and the Vacuum Oil Company, shows a loss of $4,169,247.

The gross earnings of the new corporation for the year totaled $61,373,974, after the deduction of costs, operating expenses and foreign exchange and inventory adjustments. The company charged off $47,234,400 for depletion, depreciation and amortization and $1,845,186 for self-carried insurance. Federal and other taxes and interest amounted to $17,604,348.

The corporation's total current assets at the end of 1931 were $306,957,081, including cash and equivalent of $63,659,699. Current liabilities amounted to $47,884,151.

CHICAGO.—Mrs. Stephen Garretson Browning, celebrating her ninety-fifth birthday, claimed some kind of a record for gadding about. She is the mother-in-law of Frank J. Loesch, head of the Chicago Crime Commission.

Cuban Treasury May Issue Bonds

HAVANA, April 23.—It is understood President Machado has accepted the essentials of a proposal made by the economic commission that the government make an issue of treasury obligations bearing 5½ per cent interest in order to pay the debts of the government and to balance the debts of the treasury when the next budget is approved.

NARROW RANGE IN LOCAL STOCKS

General Market Continues Quiet With Price Holding At Previous Day's Levels

Quiet trading marked the final session of the week on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today. Industrial issues were unusually quiet, fluctuating in the narrow range to which they have held for the past several days.

Fuel stocks were handled in moderate volume with prices holding at or near the quotations prevailing on the close last night. In the early market a few hundred shares of Lone Star were offered, but the stock was taken at 4½, unchanged.

The market here reflected the hesitant character of the "big board," where early losses in numerous key stocks were recovered in a mild rally around the beginning of the second hour.

REPORTS BANK IMPROVEMENT

WASHINGTON, April 23.—(AP)—Reviewing the entire month of March the Federal Reserve Board today reported conspicuous improvement in the country's banking situation.

Suspensions during the month were placed at only 45 as against 122 for February and 342 for January. The deposits of banks reopening were said to be approximately as large as those of the institutions which were forced to close. Both amounts were in excess of $15,000,000.

The board noted an accelerated return flow of currency from the public to the banks, liquidation of bank loans continuing but offset in part by an increase in investments, increasing reserve balances of member banks and a decline in the total volume of reserve bank credit.

Hudson Bay Mining To Maintain Output

TORONTO, Ont., April 23.—At annual meeting of Hudson Bay Mining & Smelting Company, R. H. Channing, Jr., president, stated that the board had given no consideration to the question of closing down this copper property. Gold content in the ore, he said, was holding constant. Though income was naturally reduced through the drop in the price of copper, all copper production had been sold.

Fewer Unimpaired Freights Reported

NEW YORK, April 23.—Class 1 railroads on March 31 had 704,747 surplus freight cars in good repair and immediately available for service, according to American Railway Association. This was a decrease of 1,126 compared with March 14.

Surplus coal cars on March 31 totaled 264,606, decrease of 5,492, while surplus box cars totaled 365,209, increase of 4,689.

General Electric Re-Elects Young

NEW YORK, April 23.—Directors of General Electric Company have re-elected Owen D. Young chairman. Other officers were re-elected.

Crude Work

The hand given below illustrates several all too frequent happenings among ordinary players. Z was supposed to be a better player than her partner, although the former was far from being a good performer. What happened was one species of the many varieties of "bridge crimes" daily committed.

♠ A K 10 9 [illegible]
♥ K [illegible]
♣ A
♦ [illegible]

♠ 3

♣ Q [illegible]

♠ Q [illegible]

♣ 10 [illegible]

♠ [illegible]
♥ A
♣ K J [illegible]
♦ A K 10 [illegible]

Z made a sound opening bid of 2-Diamonds. A and B passed throughout. As a semi-demand bid promises another declaration, Y only had to bid 2-Spades. Z shifted to her other suit, bidding 4-Clubs as a demand that Y respond. Over Y's rebid of 4-Spades, Z jumped into a declaration of 6-Diamonds. Of course Y should have played the hand at spades, but she deferred to Z's greater experience and passed. A small slam at spades would have been the easiest sort of thing to make. By great good luck Z could have fulfilled her contract had she played intelligently, but she missed her opportunity.

The opening lead was the 5 of hearts. Z's lone ace won the trick. Sound strategy with the cards held is as follows: Having won the opening lead, take two rounds of diamonds; this will drop both of A's trumps, leaving out only the J of diamonds capable of winning an adverse trick. To make certain that B cannot ruff anything, lead another trump for [illegible] B to win the trick. What can he return that will be dangerous? If he leads back a club, Y will win the trick. It will be safe to lay down dummy's two winning hearts to obtain two club discards from Z's hand. Then another club discard can be obtained by leading two rounds of spades. Z must trump the third round of spades and pick up B's last trump before spreading the hand for a small slam. If B leads anything except a club when he is forced to win the third round of trumps with his J, Z's procedure will be easier and safer than if a club is the return lead.

Instead of following the sound strategy outlined above, after having won the first trick with her Ace of hearts, Z led a small club to gain entry to dummy. Two of the declarer's clubs were discarded upon dummy's two good hearts. Next dummy's lone diamond was led and Z lost the trick on a finesse of her 9. It is contrary to sound tactics to finesse against both the Q and J when only a single finesse can be taken. If a second finesse could have been made it would have been sound procedure to have finessed on both occasions. Z should not have finessed at all under the circumstances.

After A had won with the Q of diamonds the return lead was his lone spade. Knowing that she never could regain entry to dummy and needing one more discard of clubs, Z took a second round of spades, discarded a club and A ruffed, winning the second trick for his side.

Worse than all that was the fact that B still held the J-8-3 of trumps, so that the declarer has to lose another trick in diamonds, going down two tricks on cards capable of winning a small slam.

Teach Children to Listen

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

There is one friend who always comes to my mind first of all when I've experienced something thrilling or interesting or come home from a trip, for the simple reason that she is such an excellent listener. Her eyes sparkle. The humorous events elicit chuckles. Her apt comments lend spice to the tale. I feel sure every moment that she is living over with me what I am telling her.

Listening is indeed an art, a necessary adjunct to any conversation. Many monologists may keep still while someone else talks, but only to get more monologue ready to roll forth when the other fellow pauses for breath.

It is teaching a child something of value educationally and socially when we teach him to listen to what is being said, and I, for one, believe this can be done only by listening with equal interest and courtesy to what THE CHILD has to say.

A child whose breathless account of his young playmate's first flight in an airplane is interrupted while mother asks dad if he called the phone number written on the desk pad, is going to burst forth again at the first moment with a continuation of his own story. His anxiety to have a chance to complete it also precludes any possibility that he may listen with any interest to anything said in the meantime.

To make your child one of those rare people who can be good listeners, you must first listen thoughtfully and wholeheartedly to what the child has to tell. It may not sound important to you, but it is to him.

The child who in return for your efforts at courtesy oversteps his privilege and monopolizes the conversation, should be quietly reminded by mother that he has had his turn at talking and that it is time for him to listen for a while.

Children will listen to us more readily if we listen to what they have to say. After all, conversation is a give and take proposition. When we yearn to hear a monologue we can go to vaudeville shows, but monologues are unpopular at social gatherings and it is worth while to teach a child to avoid perpetrating them.

Fathers—feeling just as young and chipper as 20 years ago, look askance at the glorious creature that is their daughter, and say, feeling their years suddenly, "Can this be the same baby that my wife and I had once upon a time?" They study that daughter, her golden hair so ribbon-smooth and lavishly waved, and see the fuzz that once was there on that head for the birds to wonder about—if it mightn't make a good lining for a nest! Her delicate nose, that once was a joke for everybody, because it looked like a dough-button. That figure—Diana-like, could it be that same once-pudgy, barrel-like Cupid figure with no waist? Eyes, gorgeous and immensely dangerous to young men, once round and blue and short-sighted under eyebrows that needed a high power microscope to see a Mouth that once prided itself on blowing bubbles—now a rouged rose, also a danger.

If Father thinks of this—I wonder if a lover, who truly loves, doesn't too! And if ever he sees a picture of his gorgeous Gloriette as the new baby that once she was, what mixed and tender thoughts must gather in the corridors of his mind!

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Every Neuritis Should Receive Early Treatment

Dr. Copeland

As I sit at my desk I have two papers before me. One is a letter from a sufferer of neuritis and the other is a medical address giving the recent advances made in this troublesome disease.

Neuritis is a common nerve disorder that has baffled medical science for a long time. It is an inflammation of a nerve. When it involves more than one nerve it is called multiple neuritis. It is a painful condition and often is confused with rheumatism, neuralgia and arthritis.

Inflammation in surrounding tissues may spread to a nerve and cause neuritis. It may also be caused by continued exposure to cold, irritation of the nerve by pressure or from a blow, or by a disease involving the nervous system.

At the onset of the disease the inflammation is confined to the sheath or covering of the nerve. As the disease progresses the nerve structure becomes involved and diseased.

In multiple neuritis, where many nerves are involved, they degenerate and break down. This is due to a poison which is taken into the body or is produced within the body. This form of neuritis is seen in cases of chronic alcoholism. A similar condition is found in lead workers and painters. These men become poisoned by continued exposure to lead. It usually involves the nerves of the wrist, producing the so-called "wrist-drop."

Pain and paralysis of the afflicted limb are the chief symptoms of neuritis. The skin around the affected nerve becomes glossy. Ulcers frequently occur. Often the only signs are mild discomfort and tingling sensations in the diseased part. The parts most commonly affected are the face, chest, arms and legs. When the affected muscles are squeezed there is marked tenderness.

To cure neuritis the cause must first be discovered and then removed. If due to lead poisoning, change of occupation is imperative. In chronic alcoholism the treatment is more difficult, and it may be necessary to remove the patient to a hospital. The poisoning may be caused by infected tonsils, teeth or gall bladder, or by some other diseased organ in the body. Cure can be obtained only by removal of the source of infection.

Complete rest in bed is best for sufferers with neuritis. This prevents fatigue and weakening of the diseased nerves and muscles. Massage and various electrical appliances are used to exercise and stimulate the nutrition of the muscles.

Neuritis is curable if proper care and attention are given. It may require months of care, but the ultimate outcome is good. Do not neglect this condition, for it is more difficult to cure when the nerves have become chronically diseased.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Hair partings aren't following the old rules; they aren't limited to the side or middle of the head. Some of them show up two inches above the left ear, others trail along on the bias, still others divide the top-crest into front and back portions by chasing across the crown on the head, producing a front fringe and a back curtain that buns.

A well-formed bosom is a requirement if the new frock is to be carried splendidly. Development is brought about by all those exercises that pull hard on the muscles of chest and upper arms. Alcohol rubs are stimulating to the tissues, though pressure must be gentle so glands will not be injured. Bathing with salt water helps along the campaign for anatomical improvement.

Heritage

Man cannot thrust aside
 One loss or pain.
To none has been denied
 The sun or rain.

From age to age man shares
 (Both young and old)
A heritage of cares
 Of love, of gold.

The sunrise and the dusk,
 The joy supreme,
The harvest and the husk,
 The toil, the dream.

As brothers all men go
 Through life's strange plot,
For there are none but know
 The common lot.

The sunrise and the dusk,
 Gay youth, dim age;
The harvest and the husk
 For fool and sage.

A DIURETIC FOR THE KIDNEYS

Household Hints -:-

Dampness stretches the kid so that gloves will "give" without splitting.

The juice of half a lemon in a cupful of strong black coffee will frequently cure a nervous headache.

To prevent a wire mattress from rusting dissolve some vaseline in gasoline and apply with a brush. This should be done out of doors.

A silk slip that has become shabby can finish its career as a "nightie."

Never clean enamel utensils with soda. All dirt will be removed if they are cleaned with a little salt and water.

Always have an old-fashioned taper-holder so that you do not have to get on your knees to light the oven when it is low down.

A clean cloth dampened with kerosene will remove sooty marks from woodwork.

To improve the flavor of turnips and cauliflowers add a lump of sugar to the water in which they are cooked.

Roast joints warmed up again preserve their original fresh taste if placed in cold water before they are put into the oven.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Dinner Party

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Will you please help me? I am a widower, and I am planning to have a dinner party. Should I have the table set as my wife used to set it?

2. Should I send out notes of invitation or should I telephone my invitations? E. F. C.

1. Yes. This would be a beautiful tribute, and a most gracious thing to do.

2. Notes are, I think, a more delightful way of extending invitations, since they seem to be "sweet messengers" of the party, but of course, in this informal age, the telephone invitation is very often used, and is correct.

Wedding Flowers

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Should the groom or the best man buy the flowers for the wedding?

2. Is it proper for the groom to help the bride with the expense of the bridal outfit?

C.

1. The groom always buys the flowers for his bride. Usually the parents of the bride or the bride herself buy the flowers for the bridal attendants, for these flowers are planned as part of the ensemble of the attendants. However, sometimes the groom also wishes to send these flowers, and if he wishes to he asks the bride for this privilege, and she and he select the flowers together, so that they will be as the bride plans. The best man does not at all participate in the sending of these flowers, or in any of the other expenses of the wedding.

2. No. [illegible] this is in the worst of form.

Welcome Into the Family

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am about to be married, and there is one problem on which we can't agree. My fiancee says that it is the duty of my parents to make the first visit, and I say that she is wrong, that her family pay the first visit.

Thank you a thousand times if you will settle our difficulties about this . . . you are the only one who can.

GROOM-TO-BE.

The "one and only girl" is right, dear sir. It has been the custom from time immemorial, and still is the rule, for the young man's parents (or his mother, at least, if it is not convenient for his father to go too) to go at once to the girl's home, directly after the young man has told his parents of his engagement, to welcome her into the family. So important and significant is this visit-of-welcoming-into-the-family that, if possible, this call is made within 24 hours after his parents have been told of the engagement. You see, only in this way can the girl be assured that she is welcomed into the family.

BUC SLIPS OFFSET BY EARLIER WORK

Pie Traynor

THE BLOW-UP of the Pirates that caused the loss of yesterday's game probably resulted from the amazing spectacle of Pie Traynor dozing on the bases and being doubled up at second because he made a dash for home on Tommy Thevenow's fly to Pepper Martin with only one out. Little wonder that the other Bucs went to pieces after that. It was the first time in the memory of the oldest inhabitant that the king of third basemen and the prize hustler of baseball ever made a mistake on the paths. It may well be overlooked as proving only that Traynor is human and as something which you safely gamble won't happen again in a month of Sundays.

The fact that the Corsairs finished up their third home game with such a sorry showing should not be allowed to weaken the good impression they made in their first two contests. It was just one of the unexplainable bad spells that come to every club at intervals, when nobody can do anything right, and was more than offset by the good work in the previous two games in the series. If the Bucs lose only one game out of every three they'll win the pennant. Let's forget it and start all over again.

THE MARKED INCREASE in hitting power shown this year by Sam Byrd of the Yankees is explained by that player himself as being due to the same kind of shift that Paul Waner found so helpful last season in putting him back in his normal hitting stride after a prolonged slump. It was a change to a lighter bat.

In 1931, Byrd used 36 and 37-ounce sticks, usually the latter weight, as favored by Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig. In 112 games he made only three home runs. This spring, on the advice of Dick Porter, of the Indians, he switched to a 34-ounce club, and has already poled more homers than he clouted during all of last year.

"I USED TO choke my bat a little and just meet the ball," Byrd says, "getting my power in my wrist snap as I connected. Now, with a lighter bat, I hold it down at the end, take more of a cut, and often I get a pretty decent pull into left field, or beyond, if I'm lucky."

Byrd says he never forms any affection for any particular bat, never nurses one along through superstition. He picks them up at random and breaks a lot of them. He remarks that in this he differs from a teammate, Joey Sewell, who still nurses a bat that he used in the world series of 1920.

WHEN ROGERS HORNSBY broke into the National League with the Cardinals in 1915 he was a shortstop. He hasn't played that position since 1921, but may be seen there again when and if he decides to put himself in the Cub lineup to add a punch to the attack. Somebody suggested the outfield, but the Rajah shook his head. "I used to play shortstop and I may have to go back there if Jurges is forced out because we wish to use a pinch-hitter in his place," Hornsby said. "I'll not take Herman or Hack out for a pinch-hitter. They are coming along well and look to have the goods. We have speed and pitching, and if we get hitting we'll be in the fight."

Eddie Styduhar

EDDIE STYDUHAR, 17-year-old Hickory High School senior, has been ordered to report next week to the Burlington (Ia.) baseball club, of the Mississippi Valley League. Signed by the Cleveland Indians, Eddie was farmed out to Burlington and hopes to make good in his first professional try. He is a catcher.

Styduhar gained fame on the Hickory High football team of 1927, and on the school's championship basketball five of 1928. He left school, but returned in 1930 and was a factor in Hickory's championship basketball victory in 1931. Last spring he aided his school to win Mercer County B basketball honors.

EDDIE WOUND UP his basketball career last winter, and is now working out with the school baseball team. He is in excellent shape for his coming tryout in the professional diamond ranks.

The youngster rose to fame in valley baseball as a catcher for the Roberts club when that team won Mercer County honors in 1929. After playing with Roberts in 1930 he joined Transfer last spring.

IT ISN'T ONLY because he did the hundred this spring in 9.5 seconds that Bob Kiesel, blond sprinter of the University of California, looms as a possible riot in the Olympic Games. Kiesel is one of America's best prospects for the sprints for the additional reason that he has the physique. He is stockily built and powerful enough to be a good football halfback. In fact, Navy Bill Ingram, gridiron coach of the Bears, has his eye on the young man for the fall campaign. With trial heats, quarter final heats, semi-finals and finals to be run in the Olympics, the rugged Kiesel is the type apt to go farther than the high-strung, more daintily constructed runners like Frank Wykoff and George Simpson.

IN COMPLETING HIS plans for the opening of a boxing incubator in Jersey City next month, Dumb Dan Morgan has enlisted the services of Jeff Smith as chief instructor. Smith is a veteran of more than 600 fights and was one of the cleverest glovemen of his day.

All youngsters with Queensberry ambitions will be invited to enter the school for tryouts. Those in whom Morgan and Smith find signs of ability will be asked to remain, to be groomed for professional careers in the ring. The hopeless ones will be advised to forget about fighting and to seek other jobs.

LIKE MANY OTHER old-timers, Morgan declares few of the boxers of today receive proper instruction, even in the elementary principles of the leather game. With Smith's assistance he will attempt to remedy this condition.

Dumb Dan believes that his long career as a manager and as a handler of champions qualified him to spot the promising lads. He estimates that he has worked behind 3,000 boxers, and among the men he managed were three title holders—Jack Britton, Battling Levinsky and Al McCoy.

Bob Smith

THE ONLY CARNEGIE TECH athlete to be so honored this year, Bobby Smith, co-captain of the Tartan basketball team for next season, has just been called to Tau Beta Pi, national engineering honorary fraternity. This scientific organization corresponds to the Phi Betta Kappa of classical colleges, and is probably the most highly coveted individual honor at Carnegie. The unassuming lad, who led all the point scorers of Pittsburgh colleges during the last basketball season, is one of six engineering juniors to be selected, and he will be initiated on Thursday, May 12. To be eligible for Tau Beta Pi, a man must stand in the first one-eighth of his class, and his activities, outside work, general interest in school affairs, and personality, are other factors that are taken into consideration. Smith is a Dover (O.) boy, and is specializing in mechanical engineering. He is a member of Kappa Sigma social fraternity.

TARTANS FACE RESERVE IN CLEVELAND

By JESS CARVER

A Scarlet and Gray jerseyed band of track and field stars from Ohio State, more than a score strong, will test the cinders, the turf and the athletes of the University of Pittsburgh here in the Pitt Stadium this afternoon in the inaugural intercollegiate dual meet of the local season.

Possessing an array of individual stars and featuring balance and all-around strength, the Buckeyes are top-heavy favorites to make it four in a row over the Panthers, although they are not expected to win by the top-heavy majority they established in Columbus a year ago when they won by 102 to 39.

While the Panthers and Bucks are engaged in action here, Carnegie Tech's varsity squad, with a triumph to its credit over the P. A. A., meets Western Reserve in Cleveland. This meet appears to be a toss-up, although you can have Carnegie Tech at odds of about 10 to 8.

GRID STARS CLASH

The Pitt trackmen are not the only members of the Panther athletic family busy today, for the footballers completed their grueling spring practice session with a regulation game on the practice field grid, beginning at 3 o'clock, and the golf and tennis varsities engag like teams from Duquesne.

Chief among the outstanding individual performers to be presented here today by Ohio State are Jack Keller and Capt. Johnny Black, ace hurdlers; Don Bennett, sensational sprint ace, formerly of Toledo; Jess Fazekas, crackerjack 100 and 200-meter star; Clyde Beery, hammer heaver of no small repute, and Joe Wonsowitz, who has boosted himself over the 13-foot 6-inch mark in the pole vault.

Pitt will offer in retaliation a quartet of speedsters in Capt. Len Monheim, Woody Adams, Mike Milligan and Bill Keller; two fair middle distance men in Rob Roy and Jim Watkins and John Valenti, Joe Carver and Jim MacMurdo in the weights. Mike Sebastian, football star and former state high school broad jump champion, will compete in the latter event.

TECH PLEBES IN ACTION

The grid game, a regulation affair, during which the new rules will be given another stiff test, will find Coach Sutherland's second team seeking revenge for the 13-0 defeat suffered in last week's tussle at the hands of the varsity.

Carnegie Tech's Plebe track and field squad and the team from Turtle Creek Union High School will put on a dual meet in the Tartan Bowl this afternoon.

The field events of the Pitt-Ohio State meet was to get under way at 1:30 o'clock.

Orin, at 1,000 to 1, Is Beaten by Nose

SAN FRANCISCO, April 23.—(AP.)—The "if" boys were at it again today. If they had had a couple of dollars on Orin, and if Orin had been a nose faster, it would be something to talk about.

Orin, a 1,000-to-1 shot, missed a record payoff by a nose at the Tanforan race track yesterday. He finished second, nosed out by Donald Lad.

Had he won Orin would have paid $3,180.60 on the lone $3 ticket held by his 88-year-old owner, George Van Gordon.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: A WOMAN'S RECORD CATCH—A few days before my arrival in Auckland, New Zealand, Mrs. Eastham Guild, a writer and sportswoman, whose residence is in Tahiti, in the South Seas, caught a black marlin swordfish weighing 823 pounds after a three-hour struggle. The fish was hooked close to Piercey Island, off Cape Brett, in the New Zealand waters. Its length was 12 feet 9½ inches, and it measured 5 feet 10 inches around. It is the largest deep sea game fish caught in the famous New Zealand waters this season and an all-time record for a woman. The world record black marlin, 976 pounds, was caught in the same waters by the late Capt. Mitchell in 1926. Mrs. Guild has been tutored by such accomplished fishermen as the late captain and Zane Grey. THE BOBBING ISLAND—The Falcon Island, of the bobbing variety in the Tongan group, is about 3½ miles long and 1½ miles wide, and was named after the British ship of the same name, which first located and described it about 40 years ago. It disappeared in 1895, reappeared in 1900, and vanished again in the waves of the Pacific in 1913. In 1926-27, the island emerged again, but it since has staged another vanishing act and has been reported as nonexistent at present. Its size varies with every successive reappearance. Volcanic activity on the bottom of the Pacific is responsible for the isle's strange behavior. THE AUSTRALIAN CATTLE MONARCH—Sir Sidney Kidman, known as the "Australian cattle king," was born in Australia in 1857 and left home at the age of 13 to seek his fortune. Starting as a cattle hand, he rose to the situation of the largest horsebreeder and cattle owner in the Commonwealth. He is the chairman of the board of directors in 13 pastoral syndicates, a director of nine, and the owner of 13 immense cattle stations (as ranches are known in Australia), aggregating more than 40,000 square miles in South Australia. Australia is the Land of the Magnificent Distances. On Sir Sidney's immense possessions the airplane is the favorite means of getting about. THE SHEEP-KILLING PARROT—The "Kea" used to feed on berries growing on the hills of New Zealand. With the advent of the sheep industry, however, the harmless Kea became transformed into a vicious bird of prey. Traveling in flocks, the birds now single out a sheep at random, and, alighting upon its back, tear away the wool and pick a hole in the flesh until the fat about the kidneys, of which they are exceedingly fond, is exposed. The sheep then is left to the agony of a slow death.

SOCCER TITLE CLASH TODAY

A new soccer champion for Western Pennsylvania will be crowned this afternoon as the Shannon Morrys and Union Switch and Signal elevens meet in the third and deciding game for the title at Scott High School Field, North Braddoc, at 2:30.

The first game found the Switch winning by virtue of a penalty kick Last Sunday, at South Park, the Shannonites evened up matters by handing the Red and White eleven a 3-to-1 defeat.

Just how today's game will go is a question. The officials of the Shannon club have been making desperate efforts to have the game played on a Sunday, as it is impossible for many of the Morry regulars to be present.

For some reason, however, the governing body turned a deaf ear to the request, so there is nothing for the Morrys to do but go through with the game. With Van Jura, Grilli and Petrolini absent, there is every reason to feel that Switch will win. But should the Morrys present the same lineup that played in the previous games, the contest looms as a toss-up.

COLLINS OFF CARD

CHICAGO, April 23.—(AP.)—A lightweight to replace Ray Collins, of Erie, Pa., as an opponent for Tony Herrera on the King Levinsky-Mickey Walker program at the Chicago Stadium April 29 today was being sought by Matchmaker Nate Lewis. The Illinois State Athletic Commission decided Collins would not be a suitable opponent for the El Paso (Tex.) boxer.

ALLISON, VINES CLASH AGAIN

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., April 23.—(AP.)—For the third time in two weeks, Ellsworth Vines, national singles champion, today found Wilmer Allison blocking his path to a major tournament title.

Beaten by the Texan in the finals of both the Tulane invitation and North and South competitions, Vines hopes to turn the tables in the title round of the annual Mason and Dixon tournament.

Playing the most brilliant singles of his career, Allison has won four of the five tournaments in which he has played and the manner in which he whipped Frank Shields in the semi-finals here yesterday indicated Vines was in for another tough session.

Allison gave Shields only five games in winning, 6-2, 6-2, 6-1. Vines, although he won in straight sets from Dr. Eugene McCauliff, was forced to one deuce set at 8-6, 6-4, 6-4.

In doubles, the final round pitted Vines and Shields against Marcel Rainville, of Montreal, and McCauliff. This latter pair sprang a big upset when they conquered Van Ryn and Allison, 4-6, 6-4, 6-3.

The women's singles championship, first to be decided, went to Virginia Hilleary, who defeated Mrs. Van Ryn, 6-3, 1-6, 9-7 in an all-Philadelphia final.

WILLOUGHBY RELEASED

SAN FRANCISCO, April 23.—(AP.)—Claude Willoughby, right handed pitcher of the San Francisco Seals, has been given his outright release today. He was acquired early in 1931 from the Pittsburgh Pirates.

LA BARBA, PENA WIN BOUTS

DETROIT, April 23.—(AP.)—Fidel La Barba, former flyweight champion, heads the list of semi-finalists in Scotty Monteith's elimination tournament to select a successor to Bat Battalino on the featherweight throne.

The Los Angeles favorite won the right to enter next week's semi-finals by gaining an unpopular decision over Petey Sarron, of Birmingham, Ala., southern featherweight champion, in a close fight last night.

Other survivors are Johnny Pena, of New York, who defeated Martin Zuniga, of Los Angeles, in the other 10-round bout last night, and Frankie Wallace, Cleveland, and Tommy Paul, Buffalo, winners of previous bouts.

Bunts

Pepper Martin is not putting on any batting rampage in Pittsburgh, but he looks like a Speaker in middle range.

Grace's second double was close to the home run zone. Woodie Jensen ran for the hard-hitting catcher and soon landed at home with the tying run.

Sylvester Johnson seemed to "dust off" Lloyd Waner in the first inning when he had Lloyd in a hole. He fanned him in this instance and he had Lloyd's number in the eighth with runners on first and third and none out. Lloyd fouled out.

Brother Paul picked up Lloyd with his third hit, the single scoring Jensen. Lloyd was just off his stride a bit; he cannot be good every day.

Paul Waner

The highly-charged Pirate-Cardinal series marking the advent of a new baseball season in Pittsburgh will come to a close this afternoon when the fourth scrap will be staged in the Oakland Orchard. Just when it appeared that the snappy home team would make it three in a row yesterday the Oaklanders went into reverse gear with the result that their smooth-running play was transformed into something similar to a sea-going hack, the sharp defection enabling the World Champions to snap their protracted losing streak which crested at six games.

Muffs, errors of omission, doubtful strategy and a lack of punch on several occasions had the effect of ramming the impressive Pirate craft from bow to stern. Paul Waner, with a long homer and a single had driven in three runs to effect a deadlock and the Buccos seemed to be in the driver's seat when the off-color stuff developed. A series of misplays in the tenth gave the Cardinals a 5-to-3 success, the contest being the second of 10 innings duration in two days.

BRAME, SPENCER READY

The finale is likely to bring a duel of righthand pitchers. Ervin Brame and Glenn Spencer are both ready to twirl for the Buccos, with Brame seeming to have the call. Manager Street is expected to pitch Tex Carleton, a recruit who has made a fine showing on the staff of the St. Louis entry.

After today's contest the Pirates will embark for Chicago, where they are slated to take on the Cubs in four straight games, beginning tomorrow. Returning here Thursday, the Rovers will immediately inaugurate a series with the Cincinnati Reds.

The 3,500 fans who sat in on the long fight of yesterday were stunned by the sudden reversal of play as shown by the Pirates. Perhaps there are many who share the opinion of this writer that the Pirates are capable of very fine ball while also owning a tendency to offer the contrasting type at intervals.

Even Capt. Traynor faltered. Pie was seen in the first real base-running mistake which the writer has seen him make, as he allowed himself to be doubled in the ninth on Thevenow's hot liner to Martin. Pie was on second with one out and the score tied when Tommy rammed the drive to the centerfielder. Pie streaked plateward and was rounding third when he realized his mistake.

PIET, SUHR ERR

Lloyd Waner dropped a short fly in the tenth that opened the way to the plate with the winning run and Gus Suhr and Tony Piet also committed misplays in the round. Gus failed to get his foot on the bag in taking a throw from Piet, who had made a circus stop. Tony later muffed a fly that had a bearing on the safety tally of the inning.

The debatable strategy exhibited by the Pirates was confined to Suhr, the rejuvenated first-sacker, whose batting has been a high spot of the young season. Twice Gus was called upon to bunt with Traynor on first and and none out and in neither instance could the lighter hitter get Pie over the old home dish. Suhr's batting streak, which had prevailed since the season's opening, was stopped.

Well, anyhow, the Bucs had the fans all worked up to a victory pitch and then failed to click.

Larry French, on top of his short winning trick of the previous day, opposed Sylvester Johnson on the slab. Larry was good again, although he did allow himself to get nipped off first base at a time when a rally seemed imminent. In the eighth inning he came through with a safe bunt that put the Pirates in a position to win, but Lloyd Waner failed at the plate in this instance and the best the locals could get was a run that tied up the battle.

Thevenow's fumble at the start of the second inning led to two runs, and the Cards added another in the third. Brother Paul's homer into the rightfield stands gave the Pirates two tallies in the third, and Paul put the Buccos on an even footing with the Redbirds with his eighth-inning single. It was his third hit of the afternoon.

The Olympic Games

Head Coach American Olympic Teams

CHAPTER XXII

One of our brightest Olympic prospects is Frank T. Nordell, N. Y. U. middle distance star, who in childhood was considered a weakling physically.

Now, at the age of 22, standing 6 feet 2 inches tall and weighing about 170 pounds, Nordell is one of the greatest distance men in the world. He is capable of forcing to the limit any of our champions from distances of 1,000 yards to six miles. Those who have followed his career believe that this boy, who had a weak heart [illegible] an attack both the [illegible] and [illegible] records.

Nordell was stricken with the [illegible] as a child. He was kept in bed for almost two years. It wasn't until he was nearly 16 that he was allowed to play games with other boys, and then only under restraint. When he was 16 he weighed less than 100 pounds.

HAS GOOD COACH

[illegible] great among the [illegible] with each [illegible]. As a student at New York University he is under the coaching of Emil Von Elling and feels that Nordell some day will do a mile in 4:10 or better.

Nordell has [illegible] remarkable power. The development started along about the time he was 16, when he quit high school, became a mail collector and in the performance of his duties walked 20 to 25 miles a day, with a mail sack that became heavier with each new mail box that he visited.

When he was 17 or so, Nordell joined an athletic club, played basketball and soccer and then was induced to become a member of the [illegible] Catholic Club track team.

He ran in his first really competitive race, a [illegible] cross-country for novices on Decoration Day, 1928. He won it. He took part in other distance events with [illegible] success. Meanwhile he quit his [illegible] and returned to Northeast Catholic High in Brooklyn.

STARS AT N. Y. U.

On Thanksgiving Day, 1929, he entered the national interscholastic cross-country race competing against the best in the land and was an easy victor. He continued to be an interscholastic sensation.

He entered New York University in 1930. In one of his first races as a collegian at 1,000 yards indoors he stepped in 2:19 2-5 and included among the group he defeated was Gene Venzke, now holder of the world indoor 1,500-meter and one-mile marks. He ran against Phil Edwards and Ray Conger plenty of times in 1930-31 but they were a little too fast for him then.

He was third in the National A. A. U. [illegible] mile at Lincoln, Neb., last summer. When autumn came he ran cross-country for New York University. Later he tried the two-mile indoor steeplechase and won in 10:25 4-5.

He climaxed his fine work during the past winter by running a mile in 4:15 6-10 in a medley relay indoors to give his team not merely victory but possession of a new world record for the 1½-mile event of 7:29 3-5.

LACKS RUNNING GRACE

Nordell wears a 12 [illegible] shoe. Perhaps it is this, or perhaps it is the tremendous power that he puts into his strides, that destroy grace, [illegible]. But in running it isn't grace that counts. It is speed, stamina and courage. Nordell, who is part Swedish and part Irish, has all of these.

Whether he will try for a place on the 1,500-meter or the 3,000-meter steeplechase squad is not yet decided. It is likely that he will try for the latter. But whichever it is, it seems quite certain that Nordell will be elected by a big majority.

CULVER MEETS SHADY SIDE TRIO HERE

The crack polo squad of Culver Military Academy, under the wing of Lieut. Col. F. The squad was preceded by a motor transport bearing a string of [illegible] polo ponies, the pride of the Culver Black Horse Troop.

Tonight's game closes the indoor season for both teams. Culver recently won the Indiana state championship at the Indianapolis tournament. Its record of 17 victories against three defeats looms darkly on the Shady Side horizon.

The game will get under way at 8:45.

DUKE NETTERS MEET PITT

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

The powerful Pitt varsity racquet array of Dr. Billy McEllroy battles Grant Stevens's Duquesne University contingent on the Bluff asphalt this afternoon to [illegible] of the local intercollegiate net campaign. Meanwhile on the Panther rectangles the Blue and Gold Freshman outfit entertains Coach Andy Smeaton's promising Duke Frosh delegation. Both clashes get under way at 2 o'clock.

Neither the Pitt nor the Hilltop mentor has disclosed a definite first-flight starting lineup though [illegible] would involve no wild series of guesses to hazard that McEllroy will open with either Billy O'Loughlin or Billy Jacobs at No. 1, Nat Ganger, Cleveland ace, at No. 3, Capt. Ed Alcorn at 4, Irvin Goodman at 5, and either Adler, Vollmer or Wald at 6. Capt. Rene B[illegible] will probably lead off for the Red and Blue with Frank Casey, Joe O'Neill and perhaps Cliff Sossen following in the order given. The fifth and sixth positions remain in doubt.

Pitt has not yet nominated its usual combinations, but Coach Sterrett has settled for certain on Casey and O'Neill at the initial post and Bullion and Sossen at No. 2.

Frank Serany will lead the Duke Freshmen on their trial trip to Herron Hill. Wingert, Getty, Gallagher and O'Neill round out the Red and Blue host. Faust, Slocum, Robbins, Green, Goldman and Lessine comprise the Pitt band.

Bausch Tops Own Decathlon Records

LAWRENCE, Kan., April 23.—(AP)—James A. Bausch, national decathlon champion, gave notice of his Olympic qualifications yesterday by scoring an impressive point total in the first half of the Missouri Valley A. A. U. decathlon competition.

The former Kansas University athletic star surpassed all the marks he made in the same five events last year, when he won the title here.

With five more events to be run off today during the tenth annual Kansas relays, Bausch has a score of 3983.348, 276 points ahead of Gene Medley of the Southwestern Oklahoma State Teachers College, of Weatherford.

Bausch made all but a perfect showing in the shot put with a heave of 50 feet 3½ inches, rating just 1.07 points below par of 1000 for the event.

CHARITY LINKS TOURNEY ON AT EDGEWOOD

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

The beginning of play in the two-day Family-Help-Family Fund tourney at the Edgewood Country Club and the formal opening of the regular greens at the Schenley Park municipal links today sent a new golf season off to a real start.

From 8:30 this morning until 5:30 tonight golfers will tee off at the Edgewood links and again tomorrow they will wend their way to the layout to play a good game of golf and at the same time assist a worthy cause.

ALL PLAYERS INVITED

Those who cannot play today may do so tomorrow and the fine thing about it is that Edgewood has taken a side seat and is permitting golfers regardless of club affiliation to use its clubhouse and links for a contribution of only $1.

F. F. Rohrer, Edgewood president, has appointed E. A. Eisenbeis chairman of the committee and this morning at 8:30 President J. R. Dunn, of the W. P. G. A., struck the first ball of the tourney, likewise the first ball driven in competitive golf for the season. Other members of the committee include W. J. Dible, Dr. H. C. Metz, J. P. Coleman and R. A. Young.

LANG OFFICIATES

Although Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang officially drove the first ball which marked the formal opening of the regular greens at the Schenley Park links this morning it was little 3-year-old Joan Wallerstedt who struck the first unofficial ball. Director Lang also was assisted in the opening ceremonies by Superintendent of Parks James Moore, President of Council John S. Herron, John Jay Burke, Professional Bob Graham, Starter Frank Petrolia, Caddie-master Andy Petrolia, Mrs. Myrtle Stearns and N. Schern, city architect.

The municipal layout, in better condition than ever, has been in play throughout the winter, but this morning's welcome event inaugurated play on the regular putting surfaces.

H. W. McIntosh has announced that the Pup's Foot Golf Club near Edgewood will be officially opened for the season today. It will continue to be in play until November 14.

Pup's Foot, in keeping with the times, has lowered its membership fee considerably, while its daily green fee has been cut to $1, excepting Saturdays, Sundays and holidays.

WOMEN MAY PLAY

Women may use the course any time except Saturdays, Sundays and holidays and after 4 p. m. There are no locker facilities for women, however.

The Alcoma Country Club will celebrate its formal opening tomorrow according to Manager Joe Truhan. The dining room will be in full operation, as usual.

Wilma Moore Sets A. M. A. Swim Mark

Wilma Moore, of the Coyne A. C., established a new A. M. A. record for the 100-yard junior free-style swim last night in the Oliver pool, covering the distance in 1:13.5 in her title-winning effort. The meet was staged by the Coyne A. C.

Hydrowitz, also of the Coyne A. C., captured the A. M. A. junior 100-yard free-style championship, defeating Davies, of Pitt, and Gombos, of the Kennywood Park A. C. Swazik, of Pitt, won the junior A. M. A. 100-yard backstroke title, with Jones, of Pitt, second, and Aldersberg, of Pitt, third.

GRAYS PERFORM AT EDGEWOOD

By TOM BIRKS

The opening sandlot game featuring local league teams will be staged this afternoon when Wally Pickett's 1931 Greater Pittsburgh League champions clash with the Homestead Grays at Edgewood High School Field.

The presence of the Grays at Edgewood probably will pack in a record crowd, inasmuch as the Grays have put on some great games on that particular diamond in the past.

Practically all of the leading district teams will stage practice sessions this afternoon. Tomorrow afternoon the Soho McKnights will stage a special session at Moultrie Park. All players are requested by Manager Pat Griffin to be on hand.

Jack Fertig and his Homestead Aces will work at Locust Grove tomorrow, and probably swing into action in a warm-up game next week.

The prospective candidates for the Book City League team will drill this afternoon at Olympia Park, Mt. Washington.

Harry Yerx, president of the City League, tossed somewhat of a bombshell into local baseball ranks yesterday when he tendered his resignation as president of the circuit. He gave as his reason the fact that outside interests were attempting to gain control of the circuit.

Davies Gets Win Over Johnny Warner

FAIRMONT, W. Va., April 23.—(AP)—Willie Davies, 121, of Charleroi, won a decision over Johnny Warner, 125, of Pittsburgh, in a 10-round main bout event last night.

Frankie Reilly, 136, of Fairmont, got a decision in six rounds over Eddie Guba, 139, of Pittsburgh.

GLASSPORT WINS

Glassport High [illegible] defeated Homestead [illegible] in a night game at Homestead [illegible]. The game was the first spring practice game to be played at night. [illegible]

Tony Falco Wins Over Frank Bojarski

ERIE, Pa., April 23.—Tony Falco, Philadelphia's lightweight, administered a sound thrashing to Frankie Bojarski, Erie southpaw, before a packed house here last night. Falco, who scored a technical knockout over Bojarski in a bout at Philadelphia recently, outclassed the Erie scrapper from the start, winning eight rounds.

Sport Vignettes

The first real big sports Saturday of the outdoor season is before the local fans today with baseball, track, golf, tennis, trapshooting and whatnot on the program. Especially the whatnot. . . . Even spring football is scheduled. . . . But of course that already has been covered under the head of whatnot.

John T. Taylor, secretary-treasurer of the Allegheny Mountain Association of the A. A. U., is in receipt of a bid from Los Angeles to send Miss Lenore Kight, of Jack Scarry's Homestead Library swimming team, there for the National A. A. U. championships. . . . Miss Kight won the A. M. A. free style 500-yard championship night before last, and has been a consistently good performer not only locally but in National competition as well.

The fates have contrived to toss Ellsworth Vines, National tennis champion, and his twice conqueror, Wilmer Allison, together again today in the final round of the Mason-Dixon tournament at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va. . . . Before they finish this series we ought to have a fair idea of whether or not Allison is a good tennis player. . . . Harry Yerx has resigned as president of the City League because he was irked by the [illegible] by some members of the organization, it is said. . . . And when a Yerx is irked, well, a Yerx is irked.

First time the Pirates hit a home run this season they lost in 10 innings. . . . Without the homer they would have lost in nine, so the homer wasn't wasted anyway.

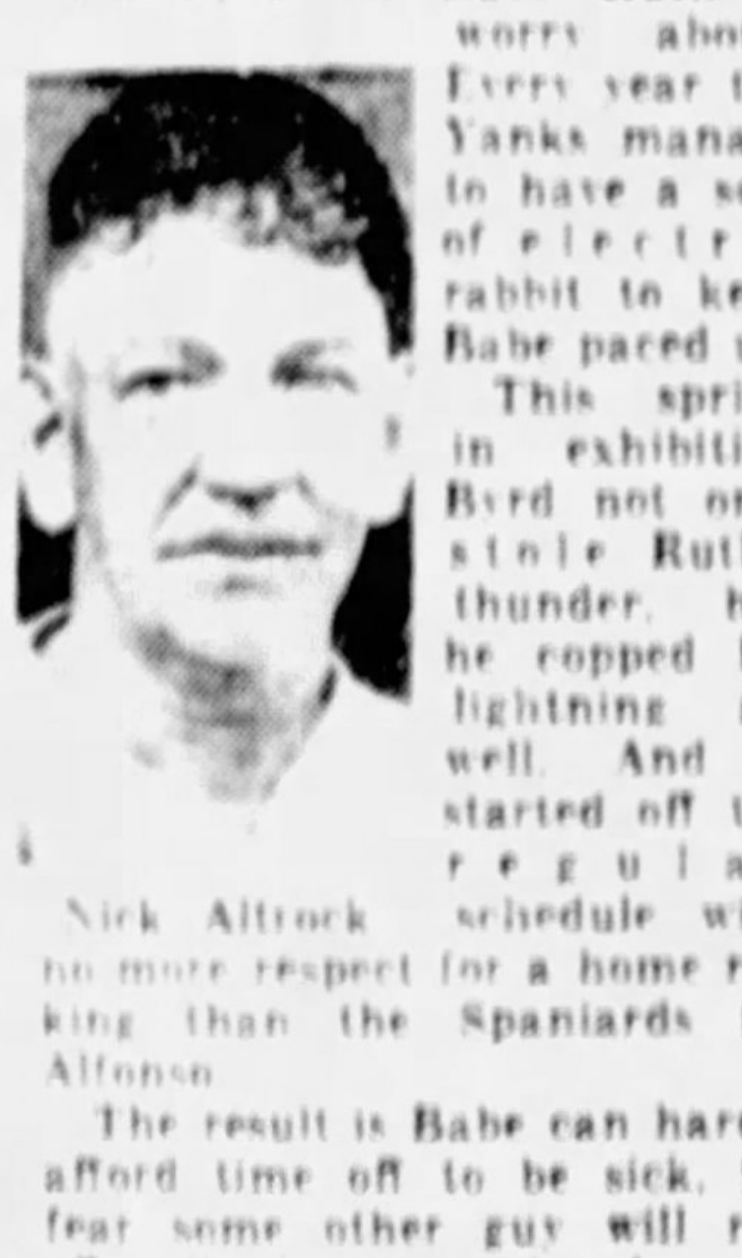
Baseball's Humorist

Says:

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 23.—If it ain't Lou Gehrig, it's Sam Byrd for Babe Ruth to worry about. Every year the Yanks manage to have a sort of electric rabbit to keep Babe paced up. This spring in exhibition Byrd not only stole Ruth's thunder, but he copped his lightning as well. And he started off the regular schedule with no more respect for a home run king than the Spaniards for Alfonso.



Nick Altrock

The result is Babe can hardly afford time off to be sick, for fear some other guy will run off with the crown jewels.

Byrd attributes his slugging success to a very light 34-ounce bat. If that's the big secret, I am recommending some of our Washington batters should swing clothespins or even toothpicks.

HOT CLASH OVER BRIDGE ART

After settling the award for sculptural work on the West End Bridge in a stormy session yesterday, the County Commissioners are prepared to investigate as to whether they are buying the right kind of granite for sculpture on the Westinghouse Memorial Bridge.

At yesterday's session Acting Chairman C. M. Barr shouted answers to Robert St. Simms Martini, who was protesting the award of the West End Bridge job to Miss Sue Watson Marshall. Martini was representing Frank Vittor, sculptor. When Commissioner W. D. Mansfield made a motion to award the contract to Miss Marshall, the low bidder, Martini interjected:

"By unanimous action this matter was laid on the table, and it will take the same action to bring it off the table."

But it was off the table, and Barr said so vehemently.

Later Vittor appeared and declared the Commissioners were buying granite for the Westinghouse Bridge that is unfit for sculptural work. Stone contractors and others were to appear today to give expert advice on granite.

OHIO COAL MEN REJECT UNION

WASHINGTON, April 23 (AP).—Ohio coal mine operators today informed Secretary Doak that their mines would be operated on an open shop basis and they would not meet in his office Monday with representatives of the United Mine Workers of America.

The operators last week refused an invitation to meet here on April 20. The secretary yesterday renewed his invitation, fixing Monday, April 25, as the date.

The coal mine owners informed him that if he had any constructive suggestions that would not conflict with the open shop principle they would be glad to listen to him.

New Teams in Drive To Sell Bank Stock

Ten new teams were organized by depositors of the closed Pennsylvania Bank and Trust Company last night to continue the sale of stock required to insure the opening of the bank. More than 1,500 of the 5,000 shares needed have been sold. The new team leaders are Harry and Leo Pfohl, Dr. A. L. Lewin, O. J. Goetz, Martin Turich, George J. Bich, S. Puwalowski, Dr. Wolcyrz, Leon Rudzki, Joseph Nalitz, J. C. Mance and T. Matuszewski.

With a warning that depositors would lose about 37 per cent of their deposits if the bank were liquidated, steps for reorganization of the Citizens Trust Company of Bellevue were recommended last night by T. A. McNary, chairman of a reorganization committee. The committee plans to confer with state banking officials next week.

6 Boys Get Medals For Rescuing Dog

Six boys, who risked their lives to save a fox terrier which had fallen into an abandoned coal mine in the Glenwood district, were to be decorated with silver and bronze medals today in the office of the Western Pennsylvania Humane Society, Bigelow boulevard and Washington place.

Henry Martino, 15, of 131 Alluvian street, who risked his life by being lowered 20 feet through a small hole in the earth, is to receive a silver medal, and Nick Bonhaka, 15; Stephen Vishar, 14; John Sirkey, 15; Jack Sober, 16, and Al Graves, 17, all of Alluvian street, bronze medals.

Pittsburgher Wins High Cuban Honor

A decoration of the Grand Official of the Order of Dr. Carolos J. Finlay, one of the highest in the province of the Cuban government, has been awarded George S. Ward, former Pittsburgher, according to word received here. He is now a resident of Country Club Park, near Havana.

The award was in recognition of Ward's work in providing pure milk to residents of the island. He went to Cuba several years ago, imported cattle, and equipped a modern dairy, and is credited with having saved the lives of hundreds of children by providing them with pure milk.

Pittsburgh women elected were: Mrs. Garnet E. Drake, warden, and Mrs. Elva G. Morrow, treasurer. Mrs. Anna J. Cline, of Pittsburgh, was chosen as the representative to the Association of Rebekah Assemblies.

MURDER OF THE NIGHT CLUB LADY :-: :-: By ANTHONY ABBOT

Maid Confesses She Was Paid By Everett to Report Lola's Activities

CHAPTER XV

"And where did you go?"

"To a perfectly dreadful place, the Lion's Paw. Just opened. The whole place is in very bad taste."

"And what time did you get there?"

"About quarter to 11."

"Out to Rockville Center?" said Flynn. "You were certainly breaking the speed laws."

"Oh, not positively nothing like that. It only happened that my car is a fast car," explained Guy Everett. "Now would you gentlemen tell me why you have me here dragged out on a fiendish night like this? Where is Miss Quires and why may I not talk with her?"

Instead of replying Thatcher Colt walked to the mantel and picked up the purse of seed pearls. Holding it extended he walked back to Everett.

"Ever see this before?"

"Why—that's her purse."

"Christine's?"

"Yes—she had it with her tonight—say, what in hell is this?"

"Don't you know?" asked Colt.

"I do not."

"Don't you realize that she has disappeared—after the death of Lola Carewe?"

QUESTIONED ABOUT TIME

Guy Everett was an actor. One might have fancied that he had rehearsed the histrionic exhibition which followed Colt's curt announcement. With a sweep of his graceful arm Everett clapped his hand against his forehead. His eyes distended and his words came in gasps.

"Disappeared—and Lola dead?"

"Murdered," followed up Colt.

The actor staggered to a chair. He sat down and buried his face in his hands, and through his fingers he gasped:

"Murdered! Who would murder poor Lola?"

"What time did you leave the Lion's Paw?" Colt hastened on.

Still with his face muffled in his palms Everett replied:

"About ten minutes past eleven."

"Why did you leave so soon?"

"It was a wretched place, a great disappointment to both of us, and Christine felt ill."

"Had she been drinking?"

"Only slightly."

"You returned by automobile?"

"Yes. I came into the lobby downstairs but Christine wouldn't let me come up here."

"And then you went home?"

"Yes."

"Now, Mr Everett, you arrived here around twelve-fifteen. You left here let us say at twelve-twenty. You arrived at the Axton Club some time after 3 o'clock. Where were you during that intervening time?"

A DOUBTFUL STORY

Guy Everett dropped his hands to his knees and looked at Colt haggardly.

"Look here," he said, "you don't think I had anything to do with this, do you?"

"Didn't you hear what the Commissioner asked you?" roared Dougherty, beating Flynn to it. "Answer the question! What did you do during those three hours?"

"Well," replied the actor thoughtfully, "I don't suppose you gentlemen will understand, but I am an artist, a sensitive person, and I enjoy romantic impressions. When I got into my car tonight I had not the slightest idea of where I was going or what I should do. It was a beastly night, wet snow falling, a night for witches. I suddenly got the idea that I would like to spend the night alone driving around the country. So I drove back over the Queensborough Bridge and down through Jamaica to the Motor Parkway. The roads are pretty well deserted tonight. I don't think I passed two cars, and after I got as far as Hicksville, I turned around and came back."

Blank silence followed this report. Four pairs of eyes were fixed upon Mr Guy Everett.

Finally Dougherty exploded.

"Is that the best story you could make up?" he barked. "Why, confound you, Everett, you insult the intelligence of every man in this room."

Synopsis

Despite the police guard placed in her home by Commissioner Colt, Lola Carewe, suspected "higher-up" of a jewel thief ring, is mysteriously murdered. Dr Hugh Baldwin gives heart failure as the cause of death. Those present at the time, besides Colt and his aides, were Lola's mother, Mrs Carewe, the butler, maid and Vincent Rowland, an attorney. Colt feels the young man whose photograph adorns Lola's dresser—and whose identity she refused to reveal beyond his first name, "Basil"—is connected with the mystery. At the mention of his name, Mrs. Carewe becomes hysterical, saying Basil was a cruel beast and Lola never loved him. Christine Quires, Lola's guest, cannot be located, though the elevator boy claims she returned around midnight with her escort, Guy Everett, and Colt found the bag she carried. Colt 'phones Everett's apartment after 3 a. m. and learn Everett has not arrived. A clue in the form of a small wooden box is picked up under Lola's window. Chung, the butler, reveals that Everett had threatened Lola and that Rowland, the lawyer, warned her she was playing a dangerous game and would be caught. Assistant Chief Inspector Flynn, in charge of the detective force, arrives. A thorough investigation is started. The maid states that both Lola and Christine were afraid of Guy Everett. Lola had induced him to make poor investments. And Eunice also adds that Dr Baldwin told Lola his life would be ruined if Lola told what she knew. Guy Everett arrives. He asserts that he and Christine went out about 9:15 p. m.

Now Go On

"Excuse me, Dr. Dougherty," interrupted Flynn, "but there are some boys downtown who would like to have a session in the back room with Mr. Everett."

ACTOR BEWILDERED

"I suppose by that you mean that you are going to attack me physically," he said with a sudden and gratifying dignity. "I have told you nothing more nor less than the truth. I do not think I shall be afraid of your third degree. I served my country four years in the war."

"Never mind that," decided Thatcher Colt. "For the moment at least we shall accept Mr Everett's fantastic recital. It is not altogether unbelievable, but there are ways by which it can be substantiated."

"Substantiated," repeated Everett, with a glance of astonishment.

"You know, of course," continued Thatcher Colt serenely, "one has to pay a fee in order to drive on the Motor Parkway. One receives a ticket which is surrendered on passing out of the gates. You did pay your fee tonight, didn't you, Mr. Everett?"

The actor's tongue moistened his lips.

"Yes, of course," he replied huskily.

"Very well," said Colt. "Show Inspector Flynn your car license and he will check up on the matter. Good morning, Mr Everett."

With a bewildered air the actor gave the papers to Flynn and then stood up. He shook himself like a man trying to throw off a chill. Then he straightened into a military posture and bowed from the waist.

His hand was on the knob when Colt's voice halted his departure.

"Mr Everett."

"Yes, Mr Commissioner."

"How are your financial affairs at the moment?"

BORE NO RESENTMENT

Over his shoulder the actor looked at the police chief. It was a dignified posture of lofty and wellbred disdain, too well done to be real.

"I beg your pardon, sir?"

"We know about those investments," snapped Colt.

A pale cloud of fear swept across Guy Everett's face.

"Then you must know that I am—broke, as you say?"

"Do you blame Miss Carewe for that?"

"I took her advice and bought the stocks she recommended. She knows Vincent Rowland so well—she ought to have straight tips. But I couldn't blame her. It was my money and I spent it."

Colt nodded somberly.

"Do you bear Miss Carewe any resentment for that?"

"None whatever."

"Thanks, Mr Everett. Hold yourself in readiness—I may call you again at any time during the next few weeks."

"Good night, gentlemen!"

One felt that a round of applause was called for, as Guy Everett swept from the room. Instead Flynn got up and strode out muttering:

"I'll put a tail on that guy."

Waiting outside the door at that moment was Capt. Wilson with a report the penthouse search was now completed. The captain led the way to the kitchen where on the table was piled the treasure trove. But in all the search they had found no hiding place that we had overlooked. There with the famous ruby and all her other jewels and a great heap of trinkets was a diary of Lola Carewe, a number of letters written to her by Vincent Rowland, Christine Quires, Dr Hugh Baldwin and a great many others, a stack of correspondence and miscellany which meant that our men would spend many hours in a study of their contents.

But at the moment none of these documents seemed as important as one note found among the effects of Eunice James, the maid. It was a card belonging to Guy Everett and penciled on the back was the phone number of the Axton Club.

What could be the meaning of this astonishing discovery? That there was some secret liaison between Lola's personal maid and Everett seemed definitely established by the finding of this card.

"Get that girl back here!" snapped Thatcher Colt.

In her second examination Eunice was dissolved in tears and it was not hard to drag from her the truth she had tried to hide. She had a secret admiration for Guy Everett, a concealed passion. Recently Mr Everett had returned her glances. They had met clandestinely. He had even given her money.

"For what?" barked Dougherty.

"To watch what went on in this house and tell him," wailed Eunice, unhappy in her betrayal of her idol.

"And what did you tell him?"

"Everything! I told him when Christine and Lola fought and what they said."

"Did you ever hear Mr Everett threaten Lola?"

"Never—oh, Mr Everett didn't do it. Mr Everett is always the perfect gent—please believe that—"

She was off in hysterics then and they had to take her away. Colt and Dougherty looked at each other but refrained from comment. Later they would consider, match, assemble and try to fit together these segments of testimony. The object now was to learn as much as possible and as quickly as possible.

Heart of a Wife

Madge Considers Telling Dicky Entire Story

Dicky laughed as I said that I knew I should hate to be put upon a pedestal by anybody. Then he put his hand under my chin and looked down into my eyes, a quizzical but steady stare.

"Sure of that?" he asked.

I put up my hands and patted his cheek.

Dicky chuckled, then his arm tightened around me.

"You remember what Aunt Polly told Tom Sawyer. Maybe it's a lie, but if it is, it's a good lie, and I bless you for it,' or words to that effect. So if even, like Tom, it's your kind heart that made you say it, I'm grateful and happy just the same."

"Dicky, Dicky!" I shook him with a playfulness that held exasperation. "I'm speaking only the truth."

"And deluding yourself into the idea that it's the whole truth and nothing but the truth," he retorted laughingly.

"Why won't you believe me?" I asked.

"Do you really want to know?" he replied, suddenly serious.

"Yes, I do," I said sturdily.

"Then," he said slowly, "I fancy I'll have to tell you something you perhaps don't know yourself, and that is that you've been so near falling for Hugh Grantland upon divers occasions that it isn't a bit funny."

A SECRET THOUGHT

I wondered if my face was mirroring the absolute panic which had seized me. How had he guessed the secret thought which I never had allowed myself to face squarely and which I had pushed back into the deepest recesses of my heart upon the two or three occasions when Dicky's apparent neglect of me and attention to some other woman had thrown Hugh Grantland's kingly devotion into relief?

My conscience acquitted me of any disloyalty to Dicky, for the feeling which Hugh Grantland had aroused in me had been a nebulous thing, a speculation upon a possibility, instead of any definite consideration of a probability. But I could not hide from myself the fact that Hugh Grantland held a peculiar and unusual place in my life. I remembered the old quip that women at sight instinctively divide men into two classes, one containing those they could tolerate upon a desert island and those of whom it would be impossible to think in such proximity. Hugh Grantland was distinctly of the first type. Any woman would feel safe with him anywhere, and I could think of none who would not enjoy his companionship.

But upon that foundation of basic worth, Hugh Grantland had built an edifice of devotion and self-sacrifice such as few women receive. It would have taken a colder, more emotional nature than mine not to be swayed by it. But I had thought all this was locked in my own heart. I had been so careful never to betray by word or glance the interest I felt in my staunch friend that I was sure no one in all the world knew of my secret wavering.

OFFERS TO TELL TRUTH

All that is, save Lillian. Her perceptions are so keen, so almost clairvoyant, where anyone she loves is concerned, that I had not been surprised when she told me that Hugh Grantland was the only man Dicky would have to fear.

"I don't mean that you're ga-ga about the lad," she had said one day, "or that there will ever be any coffee and pistols for two staged before the breakfast hour, but if Dicky should ever take a notion to beat you up on some Saturday night, whether you needed it or not, or to fly to Reno with some other dame, I'd be inclined to lay odds upon Hugh's ability to do the heavy consolation act.

"You're not at all in love with him now," she had gone on, "and you probably never will be, for I'm counting on the Dicky-bird not hopping very far from the cage door. But if you ever do forget Dicky for any other man, that man's name will be Hugh Grantland."

And now I faced the knowledge that Dicky himself had seen as deeply into my heart as had Lillian.

What should I say to him?

Useless to deny indignantly what he had said, yet equally foolish by silence to permit him to exaggerate the value of his words. With a sudden resolution, I slipped from his arms and standing erect, faced him.

"Do you want me to tell you the truth?" I asked.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Thousands of boys and girls left the 17 Warner Theaters today laughing and singing as the weekly meetings of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club adjourned until next Saturday.

These youngsters who enjoy more than two hours of good clean wholesome fun and entertainment every Saturday at these meetings, were all talking about the big free Sunday show that is going to be held at the Stanley Theater, May 15, for members of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club, that have attended four of the regular meetings between April 9 and May 14.

BIG PROGRAM

And what a show it is going to be. Starting with a parade, which will form at the Sun-Telegraph Building, led by a troop of Boy Scouts, the bands from the Schenley and Enright theaters, the youngsters will march to the Stanley Theater, where they will be greeted by John Harris, district manager for Warner Theaters, William Scott, manager of the Stanley Theater, and all the managers of the local theaters where the Komic Club meets.

Today the youngsters of the Mt Oliver-Harris chapter of the Junior Komic Club were entertained by Dot and Ruth Einloth, two very charming little dancers that went through a very difficult dance routine. Besides the Einloth Sisters, Buddy McCulley, the Java Twins, Patsy and Jackie Guskey, Irene and Anna Mae Geiger, Jimmy Edwards, Billy Price, Dolly Pastorius, Billy Leach, Jean McCulley, Dot Boyle and Ruth Bertha offered various songs and dances. A record attendance was on hand to greet the above performers.

DOWNTOWN HARRIS

At the Harris downtown chapter the youngsters were entertained with a special reel showing the "Broadway Limited" crack train of the Pennsylvania Railroad between New York and Chicago. This reel shows just how much care and attention the different cars that go to make up this crack train received before it is ready to welcome its passengers who make it their home for 20 hours while traveling 1,000 miles. There are some very interesting shots of Pittsburgh taken at night showing the blast furnaces along the river and the arrival of this train at the Pennsylvania Station here in Pittsburgh.

And what youngster, boy or girl, doesn't want to see the circus when it comes to town. Well the circus won't be here for a long time but every Sunday in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph you will find a "scissor circus" animal, which you can cut-out, paste on heavy paper or light cardboard, color any way you desire. Cut these animals out and save them and it wont be long before you have a complete circus zoo.

Turn On the Light

Innuendoes in Poole Company Bankruptcy Require Elucidation—Comment on Local News

The people of Allegheny County have reason to be interested in the bankruptcy of the Poole Engineering and Machine Company, because that is the concern to which we awarded a $1,000,000 contract for voting machines. The innuendoes that are being made in connection with this business should be investigated, and it is gratifying to learn that Assistant County Solicitor Ralph H. Frank has laid the foundation for an inquiry.

Gov. Pinchot denies that state employes have been ordered to contribute to a campaign fund. He merely let them know that voluntary contributions would be welcome. A mere suggestion from the general of the army often, however, has all the force of a command, so far as the rank and file are concerned. It would have been better if Pinchot had let the employes contribute without any suggestion on his part.

In view of the ruthless dismissal of Dr. John R. Conover as county medical director after many years of good service—a dismissal for which Gov. Pinchot has as yet offered no explanation—it is no wonder that state employes, no matter how efficient and faithful, tremble for their jobs and regard the invitation to contribute 2 per cent of their salaries to the Pinchot campaign fund as mandatory.

*Leading life insurance men attended a sales con*ference here yesterday under the auspices of the Pittsburgh Life Underwriters' Association. It is gratifying to observe this activity, for life insurance has been proved one of the safest of investments, and it will be for the general good if people will carry policies for their own protection and the protection of their dependents.

*Dr. Ralph S. Boots, of the University of Pitts*burgh, proposes that the site of the postoffice on Smithfield street be turned into an open air meeting place where soapbox orators may air their views on any subject without police interference. The wisdom of the proposal is perhaps debatable, but there can be no doubt that a good purpose would be served in converting the area into a public square or breathing spot.

Police orders are reported to have been sent to the city's racketeers through secret channels to "close and stay closed" until further notice. It is to be hoped such orders have really been issued, and that further notice will never be given. It is also to be hoped, however, that the county detectives will continue to keep an eye on the city's racketeers.

Congratulations are due the county detectives on their activities for the suppression of gambling houses in Pittsburgh. Chief Murren and District Attorney Park have shown good sense in ignoring the old tradition that the county officers had no business to interfere with commercial vice within the city. The county detectives' Pittsburgh raids, by the same token, reflect no credit on the city police.

The Pittsburgh Motor Club has written a blunt letter to the County Commissioners, urging immediate completion of the Allegheny River boulevard, which has been held up for several years by the dispute over the right of way at the Nadine pumping station. The club has rendered a public service in calling attention anew to this unfortunate situation. It should by all means be cleared up.

Thousands of the names on Pittsburgh's election registration lists are believed by the Elections Bureau to be fictitious. While it is too late to strike them from the lists, the promise is made that if attempts should be made to vote under these names arrests will be made. The energy that is being displayed to prevent election frauds is encouraging. The County Commissioners are keeping their pledge.

"Smiling Dan" McGreevey, back at his job of directing traffic at the Point Bridge after a long illness, attributes the illness to "too much carbon monoxide." It is a plausible theory. His case is but one of a number which furnish justification for the tests the Mellon Institute is making of the condition of the air at busy street intersections.

Pittsburgh is going to send a strong delegation to Washington to argue for the construction by the federal government of the proposed $100,000,000 Lake Erie and Ohio River Canal. It is a project which would fit in very well if the government should embark on a great program of public works to relieve unemployment and restore prosperity.

Congressman Harry A. Estep declared at a political meeting Thursday night that he intended to support a $5,000,000,000 federal bond issue for public works. This is the plan that was originally proposed by William Randolph Hearst. It undoubtedly has the approval of the people of this district. Pittsburgh would benefit greatly by the purchase of steel, coal and other materials that would be required for the public works.

The need for poor relief remains unabated, yet Gov. Pinchot has not issued a call either for another special session of the Legislature or for the proposed conference preceding the session at which a legislative program, free from politics, will be discussed. The primary election will be out of the way after Tuesday. He should delay no longer.

An attractive plan by which Pittsburghers can contribute to the unemployed at no cost to themselves is embodied in the Father Cox Sun-Telegraph Home Delivery Drive. It is to be hoped that the commissions on new subscriptions, to be turned over to Father Cox for the relief of the jobless, will amount to a large sum. The subscribers will receive, as Father Cox says, "a good newspaper."

The joy of spring, as symbolized by the dance, is pictured in a spirited way in the Gravure Section of tomorrow's issue of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. An impressive photograph of the new Tenth Street Bridge will be another feature of the section. There will be a page of pictures of interesting babies, too, and another page of photographs taken in and around Pittsburgh many years ago.

The frontispiece of the American Weekly, issued as a supplement with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph, will be a reproduction in full colors of Edmund Dulac's charming painting, "The Goose Girl." The luxurious life of a Syrian princess who lived 3,500 years ago is the subject of one of the most absorbing articles. The illustrations are also noteworthy.

Painting the Lily

Life will never be perfect for a woman until she can depend on a man and a wrist watch as confidently as she can on her intuition and the kitchen clock. In short, life will NEVER be perfect for a woman!

* * *

When a good married man dies he probably goes to Heaven; when a bad one dies he goes to one of his wife's bridge teas.

* * *

You don't have to say anything original to a man in order to be considered brilliant. Just find out all the nice things he thinks about himself and repeat them over and over at intervals.

A man is never interested in a heart that is marked "To Let"; he prefers to make himself miserable by trying to squeeze into one that is labeled "No Vacancies."

* * *

Memories would sweeten a woman's life if there were not so many vivid recollections among them of the times when she made a fool of herself over some man.

* * *

Every modern woman has a rival in a man's heart—but it isn't always another woman. It's usually that interesting and irresistible person he sees in the looking glass.

* * *

A woman may forgive a man for cutting her heart to pieces—but she has the memory of an elephant for every pin-prick aimed at her vanity.

A man never forgets his first love; a woman never quite recovers from her last love—unless, of course, it ended in marriage.

* * *

A woman's birthdays are wished on her—but she has only herself to blame for her wedding anniversaries.

* * *

A man doesn't carry a vanity case probably because he feels that it would be "painting the lily" to keep touching up that resplendent vision he saw in the mirror before he left home.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, April 23. — Any day now I'm liable to slip on a white robe and sandals and high priest a new cult. This cult will fight to abolish parlor games. Every place I go, they've just dug up a new one. Try to settle down to pleasant conversation and 'pouf' the party goes gamey.

They drag out bridge tables and backgammon boards and talk freezes up. Then you must sit around trying to appear utterly enchanted while waiting your turn. Last evening I paired off with a nice number in one of the shadowy alcoves to talk things over.

She was simply dying to know how I thought up all the things I write and once I'm started on that, nothing stops me, but that certain look from my wife. I kept nothing back, dragging in high lights of my early life in India. Not exactly in India, but Ohio is right next to Indiana.

When she asked if I knew Richard Harding Davis I'd chuckle knowingly: "Know Dickie?" After all that's not really fibbing. I talked of the Paris where Villon walked, the blue lagoons off Tahaiti putting over a casual remark about the graceful curve of her swan-like neck. Was I hitting it off!

Just as I was getting ready to lionize myself in an African jungle background a crowd had to gather in the doorway and look me over. As much as to say: "The elderly Happiness Boy is having himself too much of a good time. We'll spike that old dodo."

So they suggested ping-pong. Anybody who would play ping-pong would suck eggs. But I merely laughed in the upper key, flicked imaginary dust off my sleeve and cooed. "Of course, if this charming lady prefers." I hoped they would all be seated before the crash.

I fancied her sneering: "Play ping-pong when I can talk to such a brilliant." Yet I wasn't such a bargain. Instead of protesting she clutched my coat lapels and gurgled. "Let's." And off we went in a skip and toddle. She skipping and I toddling.

* * *

We chose sides by drawing straws—and if drawing straws isn't Nance stuff Al Capone is a goody-goody. I was mated with a rather severe lady who took her ping-pong to heart. We were handed paddles, the crowd grouped around and the battle was on. Keep the telegraph wires clear!

You'd be surprised at my first few swats. We pinged and ponged forward and back like the Old Harry and then I would have to reach for a wide one with a curve. Reaching was never up my street. I'm more of a hands-in-the-lap boy. Always I over-reach and this was no exception. Snap went my galluses in the back. It was no time to get panicky. While they cheered and screamed "Bravo" I kept on leaping hither and thither for all the world like that proletarian platitude "Cool as a cucumber." Sometimes I think I'm part Tilden. Playing the game to the end!

* * *

Or rather almost to the end. Just when the trousers took on a baggy effect at the ankles, I put on my act. Slapping at the ball, I faked an accident and dropped, writhing. Don't wince so, Madame, I'm not badly hurt. Just the ankle bone snapped. Keep the guests amused. I'm splendid. Tell the boys to sing "You Try Somebody Else." Start the dancing. See, it's nothing; I can stand on one foot. I'll be out in six weeks and ready for another game. Wonderful of you to have me. Remember me to the Duchess!

* * *

Thus hobbling to a cloakroom I could tug at the slipping trousers and not a soul suspected. What right has an old mossback such as I to play children's games anyway? I'll wind up yet on one of those hardwood floors with a cracked hip playing blind man's buff. Or do a Brodie into a cellar trying to pin the tail on the donkey.

* * *

My hatred of games dates to the eighth grade when tiddly-de-winks was hot stuff in our town. Somehow they roped me into one of the match games and just to make it all silly I won. The local weekly carried an item something like this: "Master Odd McIntyre is now the tiddle-de-winks champion in Miss Lupton's class." It was a year before the gang quit yoo-hooing.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

You're mad. Somebody has disappointed you terribly—failed to live up to your ideals.

So now you're shocked, hurt, disgusted, plenty peeved, for this offense wasn't a common misdemeanor. You trusted him. You believed in him. You believed that he would fit a certain noble pattern of life.

It was a high honor to expect him to do that. It put a big responsibility on him. He should have been grateful.

But he wasn't. Instead he disregarded your ideals entirely and yielded to his own impulse.

Yes, he broke faith with you and with the finer things of life. So of course you have a right to be righteously indignant.

He imposed on you, you say to yourself. He abused your confidence and betrayed your faith. He was an ingrate and a cheat. And now you despise him. You try to make him feel like 30 cents. And you're bitterly sorry for yourself.

You go around telling people what a terrible person he turned out to be, and how badly he used you.

You say, "Well, you can't expect to make a silk purse out of a sow's ear, and it doesn't do to throw pearls before swine."

That's how you feel about someone who fails to live up to your ideals.

But how do you get that way? Where do you get the big idea that your ideals are the only true and beautiful pattern of life?

You act as if you had cornered the Ten Commandments—but why? Don't you know that our ideals are all-of-a-piece with the rest of us; that they correspond with our general development?

There is no such thing as a fixed ideal for human behavior, no unchangeable standard of right and wrong. Each man makes his own ideals according to his own capacity, and changes them with his spiritual development.

You realize that your capacity is limited in other respects. You readily admit that you don't know the ultimate truth about engineering, agriculture, science or art. And yet, with never a doubt, you set yourself up as an authority on righteousness and speak of your "ideals" as though you had a copyright from God.

Piffle! A man's ideal is only his own personal notion of goodness, which may, or may not be so hot.

So perhaps your ideals were a great gift to your friend, and again perhaps they weren't. But, even if they were noble and beautiful, who gave you the right to hand them on to him? Who appointed you to show other people how to live?

He didn't live up to your ideals, and as a matter of fact, he wouldn't be worth a hoot if he had lived up to them. Each man must make and live up to his own ideals; and his right to make a mistake is as sacred as his right to succeed. For we learn as much—perhaps more—through failure as we do through success.

So no one has "failed" you or "cheated" you or been ungrateful to you. You haven't a particle of excuse for self-pity. If your feelings were hurt, that's just your bad luck. You had no right to have such feelings.

And as for defending the finer things of life—baloney!

You're not indignant because someone has done righteous dirt. YOU'RE JUST MAD BECAUSE YOU CAN'T HAVE YOUR OWN WAY.

Isn't It So?

To borrow is human, to pay back is divine.

Your mind is like a bank account—you can't draw out what you don't put in.

There are two ways of doing a thing—even three, four or five, when it comes to making friends.

Text For Today

I am the light of the world: he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life.—John, viii:12.

(Today's text is suggested by the Rev. Charles H. Eisenbach, pastor, Trinity Lutheran Church, Corliss.)

The Hearst Papers Advocate:

7—Federal sales tax and excise taxes to replace the income tax, which has degenerated into a racket.

The Way Out

No. 2—Revise the Tax Bill.

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

THE prolonged business depression and far-reaching unemployment constitute a broad challenge to political and business leadership. Instead of decrying the lack of leadership, the Hearst newspapers desire to make such contribution as they can to constructive, forward-looking economic leadership. The depression should be attacked simultaneously on all fronts. The emergency calls for the spirit of a field marshal who can coordinate and synchronize various remedial campaigns.

During the present economic emergency, all new legislation must be judged according as it helps or hinders business recovery and re-employment of the vast hordes of idle men and women.

Nothing that the Senate can do at present to promote better feeling and improved business would have such immediately constructive results as revision of the hodge podge tax bill, which the House has left at its doorstep.

AT a time when the economic impasse called for delicate social engineering, the Lower House, under the sway of the know nothing group, struck out with a sledgehammer, and went far toward destroying slowly returning confidence.

Psychologically, the House thus nullified the better sentiment resulting from the reconstruction program, including the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and the Glass-Steagall act, which incidentally thus far have been ineffective toward checking the disturbing shrinkage in member bank loans and investments.

The demagogic "soak the rich" campaign, which unfortunately will hurt the poor far more than the rich, who have avenues of escape, was followed by a further collapse in security prices.

It intensified deflationary influences and helped to prevent normal seasonal improvement in trade and industry.

A sincere, scientific effort to remake the tax bill in accordance with sound economic principles would put the country greatly in debt to the Senate.

Even a return to the compromise taxes, originally suggested by the House Ways and Means Committee, would mark a noteworthy step forward.

THE manufacturers' sales tax, long tested out in Canada and in other countries, is especially useful in a period of depression, when taxes based on profits tend to disappear.

A THOROUGHGOING SALES TAX WOULD BE A REVENUE YIELDING IMPOST THROUGH ALL STAGES OF THE BUSINESS CYCLE.

It is relatively a harmless and painless tax.

Evenly distributed over many commodities, it would not disturb the channels of distribution.

It is free of punitive features, which would be disastrous at this time in frightening employers, who otherwise might provide jobs.

The sales tax should be supplemented by an excise tax on light wines and beers, which ought to be legalized.

If the Senate needs evidence that constructive action is required, need it look further than the current statistics of trade and employment?

Bungling, stupidity, unreasoning prejudice—these are cardinal sins these days, when superior wisdom in economic legislation is urgently needed to reverse the business tides.

SOPHISTICATION

By Winifred Black

Twenty-two is the ideal age for marriage, as far as women are concerned, says Mr. Cavendish Moxon, consulting psychologist. Mr. Moxon has been studying the marriage question in and out of the courts for the last 10 years and he likes to give advice about it.

"A woman of 22," says Mr. Moxon, "is apt to be pretty, clever, sophisticated and interesting."

Yes, indeed, Mr. Moxon; ah, yes, indeed!

Pretty and clever, perhaps. Interesting? Well, that is as may be.

Anybody's interesting, as long as you are in love with her, but oh, what a bore a girl like that can be when the mysterious veil of illusion begins to get frayed at the edges!

"Sophisticated?" Well you may consider that sophistication is something to admire, Mr. Moxon, but to me there are two hateful words in the English language—"cynical" and "sophisticated."

I'd run a mile at full speed to get away from a cynic, and nobody in the world drives me to such boredom as one of those persons who love to be known as "sophisticates."

I never saw a sophisticate who was not narrow, small-minded and half blind to three-quarters of the world and the people in it.

A sophisticate never sees anything but the garbage under the kitchen sink, or, if the garbage pail is empty, the sophisticate knows it ought to be full and will be in a few minutes.

Present a sophisticate to a good, honest, decent, hard-working mother of a good, honest, decent family of children, and he'll look around the corner to see where she keeps her lover or peer into the kitchen cupboard and expect to find either a bottle of gin or an opium layout.

Sophisticates know so much that they don't know a thing, really.

They are soaked to the eyes with the evil knowledge of their own small, evil minds.

They live in a world of subterfuge, evasion, pretense and hypocrisy, and they're so used to this pitiful substitute for reality that they can't recognize the truth when they see it.

"To the pure," they say, "all things are pure."

To the sophisticated all things are rotten.

Of all the blind, stupid, obstinate, dull-witted fools on earth, give me a professional sophisticate.

He will look through Shakespeare's sonnets, not to feel the rush of the singing music in them, but to hunt out some obscure obscenity, which to a decent mind does not exist.

If there's a rotten apple in the box of fruit my grocer sends me, I want to have sense enough to see that apple and know it for what it is; but heaven preserve me from thinking that all the rest of the fruit in the box is rotten, too.

I like a good piece of apple pie too well for that.
